FELTON ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION.

A TRULY LURID DAY IN ROME.

The Meeting of the Jeffersonian Democatic Convention.

WHICH ANTAGONIZES THE ALLIANCE.

An Address from the Regular Democratic Convention.

DR FELTON'S SPEECH TO THE PEOPLE

way to fight a thing is to fight it. You can't apologize for a thing and Eght it at the same time." This remark made by Dr. Felton a few min ates ago, is the keynote of the campaign opened here this afterneon. It was the policy of his speech, which is even now thundering in the ears of the people

Beginning at about half past 3 o'clock, he chained the attention of the crowd in the opera house for an hour and a half, and almost every sentence was punctuated with applause. From beginning to end it was a bristling attack on the Farmers' Alliance and the subtreasury plan. The hallelujah lick was taken up at the start, and kept up to the end, and every now and then some fellow would shout his approval.

THE AUDIENCE INTERESTED.

About the time Dr. Felton had warmed u to his subject, and the audience was beginning to get hot also, a man in the gallery shouted "Open the polls, I want to vote."

This brought down the house, and a little later another enthusiast followed one of th doctor's sledge-hammer licks with the cry of "Glory of God." A little further on another man exclaimed: "It ain't Ithe subtreasury we want, its Etowah bill."

Such interruptions ran all the way through and the speech was a continued triumph. Dr Felton keenly enjoyed all this, for the especial reason that Rome has always been the center of opposition to him.

MRS. FELTON APPEARS. Mrs. Felton also had an ovation which she keenly enjoyed. The convention had met at 1 o'clock in Nevin's opera house, and had built its platform appointed its congressional executive commit tee and endorsed Governor Gordon for the senate, when a committee, preceded by the Rome Silver Cornet Band, conducted Dr. and Mrs. Felton to the stage. As the doctor wa-going on the stage on one side, Mrs. Felton accompanied by Mrs. H. H. McClure, crosse over and went up the steps on the other side As Mrs. Felton came in view of the audience she received an ovation. Excited by the cheering, she turned and waved her handker chief to the audience. At this they cheered louder than ever.

Meantime Dr. Felton had come out on the stage from the entrance on the other side, and was greeted with thunders of applause. The opera house presented a remarkable scene. The stage and galleries were decorated with flags and bunting, and the men out in the audience were shouting and waving their hats. The house was packed with people, and along either side of the parquett and in the dress circle were farmers, or men who had that appearance HE ACCEPTS THE NOMINATION.

Dr. Felton began by expressing his apprecia olitical honesty and fealty to the democrati party.
"I feel grateful, very grateful," said he.
It is an honor worthy

"I appreciate the honor. It is an honor worthy of the ambition of any Georgian. [Applause "I appreciate the unanimity with which has been bestowed. I appreciate the charac ter, patriotism and intelligence of the gentle-men who have bestowed it. It is, indeed, gratifying, and with a full knowledge of the responsibilities it imposes, and of the labor which it imposes upon me now and hereafter. fully conscious of the great trust that you hav committed to my hands; fully conscious of the trust that will remain in my hands till every duty imposed by this nomination is honestly and faithfully discharged, [applause] I say to you in the full knowledge and conscious of all these things, I accept the nomination This acceptance of the nomination was fol-lowed by tremendous and long continued cheering. Hats were waived, and one man raise an umbrella and flopped it as if in imitation of

THE REASONS WHICH INFLUENCE HIM. "I accept of it," he continued, "from a sense of duty to my brother farmers of the seventh congressional district, [applause] and the duty that I owe to every business man of every class and occupation in the seventh dis trict. [Applause.] I accept of it from a sense of the duty that I owe to the democratic party. I accept of it from a deep sense of the duty that I owe to the preservation, main-tenance and perpetuation of the grandest and freest government on God's earth. [Applause.] I accept of it, gentlemen, not onl the mere act of nomination, but I accept of all that you have adopted in the way of platform, in the way of resolutions, in the way of pledges, in the way of obligations, and if I am elected to congress, I here pledge myself unswervingly to maintain and support every provision of your platform. [Great cheering and 'glory to God.']

"If defeat were inevitable, and it is not, [great cheering and "hurrah for Felton'] I feel today that the grand people that I have represented in congress, and a part of whom I have so long served in your state legislature, I feel today that this grand and noble constituency will do right if the heavens fall. [Cheers.] But I say again that if defeat were inevitable it is right and proper that the proceedings of this democratic convention of the seventh congressional district should be spread out the record, the political records of this district at least, as a protest against claims and pretenses unparalelled in the history of the democratic party. [Applause.] "A protest! Do you know the meaning of that word protest? When it is spread upon the pages of the legislature journal, it means 'all rights reserved." When spread upon the proceedings of any body, it means 'we do not consent.' We must not be judged in the futare by that which we conceive to be wrong.

[Applause.)
"I remember one remarkable instance of protest. When Lord Chatham was old and infirm, with his legs and his knees bandaged in flan-nel, he was carried to the house of commons dressed substantially these words to the presiding officer: 'Mr. Speaker, I have crawled for the last time in my life to the house of commons, simply to enter my protest against the proceedings in council, which, unless arrested, will lose to England the brightest jewel in her crown-the American

The implied analogy between the position of the feeble but heroic Lord Chatham and that of Dr. Felton was subtle, but the crowd caught the idea and cheered and he continued:

"With that the old statesman and patriot sank back exhausted in his chair. What were the facts? Lord North persisted in his usurpa-tion and his oppression, and on account of those tyrannical proceedings England lost the brightest jewel in her crown-the American olonies. [Applause.] But the protest of that old patriot and statesman survived all and lives today as a rallying point for the lovers of constitutional liberty the world over. [Great cheering.]

FEALTY TO DEMOCRACY. "I rejoice in the sentence of your platform which says, 'We claim and acknowledge allegiance to the principles announced in the plat-orm of the national democratic party.' There is no uncertain sound here. There is no double face here. It does not have a face for the public, and at the same time a face for secret political organization. [Applause.] Decided, plain, simple, it requires the interpretation of no secret political conclave. It requires that I do not have to run to Atlanta weekly to re-establish and reaffirm my allegiance to the St. Louis platform. [Cries of "Hurrah for Corput!" and "Hit him again!"] It is so simple, plain and intelligible to every one that we simply have to an-nounce it to command the respect and the con-

dence of every true democrat in Georgia. [Applause.]
"But I said that I accept the nomination from a sense of duty to the farmers."

With this the doctor alluded to his life on the farm for forty years, and challenged any nan to point to the vote or the act of his in the legislature or in congress which was against the farmers' interest. Alluding to he State road lease for $420,000 a year, the addition to the school fund of all tax arising from an appreciation of property, and to the fight for the railroad commission, which he said had saved millions to Georgia. He called on the members of the legislature to say who had fought longest and most faithfully for the measures. TOUCHING ON THE ALLIANCE.

Then he began on the alliance. "I am a farmer," said he. "I have stood by their interests. I love them sincerely and ruly, and I accept this nomination in part that I may warn them, and that I may entreat hem to beware of the demagogue that is seek ing to despoil them. [Great cheering, continued and renewed.] I see in my state today a vast organization, secret, political, that has its grand purpose, honest, incorruptible men, as pure as live under your shining heavens, conervative by nature and by occupation. I have seen them, under the impulse of the moment, rushing pell mell into an organiza-tion that is designed to rob and plunder and despoil, not for their benefit, but for the crafty, designing and cunning lemagogue. [Great cheering and a voice,

'You have got 'em down right.']
"I am a farmer, but I have lived long enough to know that other occupations have their rights as well as mine. I have lived long enough to know that other industries an ther occupations are important and essential as well as mine. [Applause.] I have lived long enough to learn that when you injure one like the members of the human body. These members are separate, it is true, but they are in mutual sympathy. They are all mutually dependent, and when one suffers the whole body is disordered. [Applause.] So that the industries of every country, the wealth-pro-ducing occupations, are all in mutual symupon the other, and where you injure one you injure all." DRAWING THE LINE. Here he drew a picture of the army and

'Who would then have asked a brave, patriotic young volunteer his occupation?
Who would have said to him: Comrade, are you a farmer? Comrade, are you a merchant? Comrade, are you a clerk? Comrade, do you buy goods? Comrade, are you engaged in manufacturing? Comrade, are you a preache in some city or incorporated town? Comrade are you engaged in anything but agriculture? And if the poor fellow says yes, he is kicked out as a dog [Great laughter and applause,] unworthy to stand by my side."

Then he attacked the alliance because of its parentage. "Notice its history," said he. "Whence doe it come? Is it by native Georgia growth? [Great laughter and applause.] I can't speak all about it for I don't know. There are a good many people who stand around, not many either, but some who stand around, and I hear them occasionally, when there is shouting in-de. They say to me: 'Do you hear that?'

"'Hear what?' said I. Well, I hear the crowd inside shouting, and I shout too." [Laughter.]

THE STATE ORGANIZER'S VISIT. Here the doctor referred to the visit of the tate organizer to his house. He was favorably impressed with what he was told of the order, and asked the state organizer if it was political or sectarian, to both of which questions he said no. He thought of joining, and was notified that they were ready to initiate him at the next meeting. Sickness prevented him from going, and in the meantime information came to him that it was an organtration for a political purpose. By the time he got to the legislature it was on the biggest kind of a political move, and tried to instruct and even dictate to a freeborn legislator. "It was not long before there was a general movement for the political offices in Georgia," said he, and I have never yet joined the Farmers' Alliance. THE ORIGIN OF THE ALLIANCE. Let us see the nativity of this new political party, for it is neither more nor less. Where were its platform and principles originated Where was it born? In Georgia! No sir, in St. Louis, Missouri. Who composed the organization that formed it? They were not all democrats, they were not all farmers, they were not all southern men. It was a conglomerate mass, a conglomeration of sore-heads Great cheering.) Mark you, in this discussion I draw a broad line, as broad as that between heaven and the dark abyss, between the honest, true and patriotic farmers of Georgia, who have gone into that organization with pure motives and honest purpose, and the leaders, cunning crafty leaders, the cunning crafty demagogues who seek to despoil.

"The St. Louis platform has two leading features. The first is that we want the sub-treasury system. That is, we want the gov-ernment to build warehouses in every rich county in the United States. It does not read for the last time, and crawled literally to his that way, but that is what it means. I suppose and, rising in feebleness, adpose there would be two in the seventh district. [A voice, "Clements says five."] Well maybe so. I did not know there were five rich counties in the district. Then he argued that to build 1,000 warehouses would cost $50,000,000, and put a horde of federal officials under the appointing power of the alministra-tion. Probably republicans would be sent here to administer on your cotton, said he.

"Mark," he said, "the bill says the owners of these products, cotton, corn, wheat, tobacco and oats, may deposit in the warehouses and draw 80 per cent on their value. Richardson, the great M. sissippi farmer, and the cotton speculators could buy up all cotton, put it in the warehouses and draw money. Liverpool would say, "We den't want your cotton. We can get our supply from India, Egypt and Africa, but as a great favor we will give you 4 or 5 cents per pound for it." Dalrymple, the great wheat man of Dakota, and old Hutch, the grain-cornerer, could buy all the grain and put it in the subtreasury. The margin would be exhausted and the government would have to redeem money based on oats. In the meantime the Norway rats will have done their work and the subtreasury notes will have to be redeemed in coin, taxed out of the people, for the collateral will have gone down the stomach of the Norway rats. Then he drew a picture of the farmer's home. Of all men, ou can least afford the results of a panic that s sure to result from this inflation and contraction of the currency. Your home may be an humble one, but it is yours; your pillow not of down, but rest upon it is sweet. It is the home of your wife and your child, and let ne beg of you not to imperil that home, for all this business is to be settled in the federal ourts. It was not Georgia that constructed this; it was done by fifty men at St. Louis, who sent it here to cram down the throats of the honest, industrious farmers of the seventh district as the national democratic party. Fellow-citizens, it is my honest belief that that little crowd there assembled at St Louis knew no more about and cared no more for, and had no more to do with national democracy than the devil has to do with holy water." [Great laughter and applause.]

THE STAR CHAMBER COMPARISON. Then he compared the St. Louis convention

"Fellow-citizens, you have heard of the star chamber in old England, commencing way back yonder in the time of Edward the Third, and running all the way down to Charles the First, and probably a little into the reign of James. It was a secret political court, which met in a chamber whose ceiling was starred. The creatures of a despotic power met to do their corrupt master's will. They would bring up any citizen's name, hear ex parte testimony, try and sentence him, and the poor wretch never knew of trial or sentence or charge, until the officers arrested him and led him to the block, where his hand, arm or foot or head was cut off for a political offense. It was not a religious court. The high commission determined religious

"You have read of the council of ten in old Venice, that tried men in secret, passed upon men's characters in secret, that den them by sentence in secret, and it is wonderful that the bridge leading from the council of ten to those prison walls was called the Bridge of Sighs. My God, how many tears! My God, how many breaking hearts left that secret chamber, clothed in the murky atmosphere, and since these creatures of the despotism were enstituted to do the will of a despot-sine they tortured, poor Venice, that was called the Bridge of Sighs—the very grave of human hope. Then he ailuded to the Spanish inquisition, then to the know nothing party, of which, he said, a wave rolled over Georgia.

They held secret meetings and tested men's olitical characters. In secret they tested men's political records. In secret they rejected or accepted political aspirants for office. They resoived that no foreigner can hold office in this country, forgetting that our ancestors were all foreigners. [Applause.] They resolved that no Catholic shall hold office in this country, forgetting that John Carroll, of Carrollton, was a Catholic; forgetting that if you proscribe and ostracize Catholics, you can proscribe and ostracize Baptists, Methodists Presbyterians, all; forgetting that th very constitution forbids a religious test and religious proscription. It lasted but twelve months before it died absolutely, while it became a stench in the nostrils of freemen. [Applause.] No, sir, free government and secret political organizations cannot live to [Great applause.] Let me emphasiz it. Government by a class and government by the people cannot live together. [Ap plause. One or the other must die. My countrymen, say this day which shall survive.

PRAISE FOR THE PRIMITIVES. Here he referred to the Primitive Baptists, who eschewed secret political organizations 'God bless them; God bless every freeman today that rallies under the banner of constitutional liberty. God bless every freeman that rallies under that platform of government by the people and for the whole people. [Ap-

"Macauley says the star chamber be malignant and energetic in its rapacity. They seem to forget that the men who inaugurate such provisions for tyranny usually perish by the very means they have inaugurated. Robespierre died by the guillotine that, under his orders, had cut off more heads than in all the despots. Nature works her own cores They that take to the sword shall die by the

He then referred to the common expression current a few weeks ago, that the suballiance were then slinging their ballots to determine who would represent the seventh district in congress. He knew nothing about it. It was done in secret and men were chosen in secret In conclusion, he said:

"In sickness and in health, in sunshine o storm, whatever may betide, God being my helper, I propose to bear your standard to the best of my ability." [Tremendous cheering.] A SOCIAL RECEPTION.

Delegates and citizens pressed around Dr. and Mrs. Felton, almost suffocating them with attention.

Mr. and Mrs. McClure tendered Dr. and Mrs. Felton an informal reception tonight, and many came in to give congratulations or

Mr. J. L. Camp says Dr. Felton is as goo as elected, though there are more conservative opinions here. The Rome people nearly all think the doctor's election probable. I saw some alliancemen who were as confident of Everett's election.

Dr. Felton will make two speeches in each county, beginning the last of next week. That will take twenty-six days-one speech a day. Formerly Dr. Felton made two speeches a day for several months at a

which was as follows;

We, the representatives of the democratic party of the soventh congressional district of the state of Georgia, being in convention assembled, do hereby reaffirm our devotion to the fundamental principles of the democratic party, as contained in the platform of the party adopted at St. Louis in 1888; and we recognize the utterances of the national democratic party, when in convention assembled, as entitled to our supreme political allegiance. In the platform of the St. Louis convention we find these words: "Believing in the docgrance. In the platform of the St. Louis conven-tion we find these words: "Believing in the doc-trine of equal rights to all, and special favors to none, we demand that taxation, national and state, shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another." Therefore the democracy of the seventh district plants itself unflinchingly upon this platform in opposition to a scheme, known as the subtreasury scheme, which proposes to tax all classes and all indus-state, shall not be used to build up one interest or class at the expense of another." Therefore the democracy of the seventh district piants itself unfinehingly upon this platform in opposition to a scheme, known as the subtreasury scheme, which propose to tax all classes and all industries in this government, to build up one interest or class, at the expense of all others.

We plant ourselves upon the Jeffersonian principle of equal and exact justice to all men, Therefore we are unalterably opposed, as democrats, to giving power to any secret political organization to suggest candidates for office or adopt platforms of political principles, unknown and unrecognized by the national democratic party.

We are opposed to authorizing the government to seize railroad and telegraph lines in this country, except in time of war—we believe such a demand to be the beginning of a general attack on the rights of all private property—and if successful would result in the overthrow of civil and religious liberty—to say nothing of the tendency of such legislation to centralization (of which we have too much already in this free republic), and the foisting upon the country of a swarm of officers to do the bidding of the government.

We are opposed to class legislation and class representation in our legislative councils—state and national. We believe in a government by the people and for the people. We believe in the Jeffersonian doctrine of "encouragement of agriculture and of commerce as its handmaid." "The diffusion of information and the arraignment of all abuses at the bar of public reason." We deprecate any political movement which seeks to ostracize any of the industries of this country, while we cheerfully accord to the agriculturist every right under the constitution, which belongs to a highly honorable and essential industry, we are in favor of granting equal rights and privileges to every other honorable and every more subject of the recomment; that taxes should be laid on luxurles, rather than the necessities of l

AN ADDRESS TO THE VOTERS. democratic executive committee of Floyd county issued the following address: To the People of the Seventh Congressional Dis-trict: The independent movement in the seventh congressional district, having originated in Rome on account of certain alleged grievances, we, the democratic executive committee of Floyd county deem it proper to state plainly the facts surround-ing the election of congressional delegates from this county.

The city of Rome being the home of Hon. J. C. Clements, very naturally supported Mr. Clements for congress. It was early evident that the farm ers of the country district would support one of their profession in the democratic convention against him.

The population of Rome being about one-third the population of the county, the supporters of Mr. Clements in the city desired a primary election. The farmers in the country districts wanted the old system, ten delegates from each

The executive committee ordered a convention giving to each district ten delegates, these elegates to be elected by a primary in each dis trict. The reasons for the action of the executive committee were as follows:

1. It had been the established rule, with one ex

1. It had been the established rule, with one exception, for twenty, years to give each district in the county ten delegates, that one exception being a primary election, resulting in serious trouble to the party.

2. For ten years the friends of Mr. Clements, being a large majority of the democratic executive committee, had regularly adopted the tendelegate system. The farmers in the country districts very naturally believed a change was desired in order to defeat their candidate. They protested against any change in party methods. The executive committee, while many of them individually favored a primary, voted for the old ten-delegate system. That there was any trade or any motive in calling the old ten-delegate conven-

The executive committee, while many of them individually favored a primary, voted for the old ten-delegate system. That there was any trade or any motive in calling the old ten-delegate convention, save in the interest of fairness and to preserve the integrity of the democratic party, this committee denounces as infamously false.

For these reasons, and others, not necessary to be mentioned, the executive committee gave to each district ten delegates. It may be well to state that the most prominet leaders today of the independent movement in Rome, are the men who originated and steadily adhered to the ten-delegate system. It becomes an "outrage" only when they are unable to wield it for their own purposes. The withdrawal of the Hon. J. C. Clements from the race, instead of allaying, increased the feeling among many of his supporters in Rome. The farmers were denounced for the stand they had taken, the machinery of the democratic party being in their hands, the power which a few men in Rome had wielded for years was a thing of the past. Stripped of power within the organization they turned their backs upon the old party that had honored them in the past, and under the guise of Jeffersonian democrats lifted the flag of revolt. A convention was called. Not one man outside the Rome district was heard in that meeting. The result is known.

the Rome district was heard in that meeting. The result is known.

In passing we stopped to observe the wonderful constituency of these men. The congressional convention in this district, of which Floyd's six delegates will be a part, was denounced as undemocratic. The gubernatorial convention of which Floyd's six delegates were a part was endorsed. The man who will receive the democratic nomination for congress was denounced. The man who received the democratic nomination for governor was endorsed, and yet, Everett, of Polk, and Northen, of Hancock, stand without a difference upon the same platform of principles. Such consistency commends itself to the lovers of the democratic party.

ence upon the same platform of principles. Such consistency commends itself to the lovers of the democratic party.

In submitting the above facts we desire to state: While the action of the executive committee was the apparent cause of the revolt in Floyd, but the real cause lay in the control of party machinery by the farmers of the county.

The principles of the organized farmers of the county, it is insisted, are not in harmony with the principles of the democratic party. The principles of the democratic party. The principles of the organized farmers are subversive of democratic principles. Therefore, they contend, in order to be a true Jeffersonian democrat, a man must turn his back upon the old democratic organization, controlled by the organized farmers of the county. It is the same cry that is going up from the bolting democrats of South Carolina, and in another sense from the frightened republicans of Kansas.

This presents plainly the position of the independents in Floyd. Putting into effect these ideas, a little handfull of men meet in the court house in Rome, and gravely read out of the democratic party the great farming masses of the district.

This committee, with the interest of the democratic party of the district alone in view, asks in all seriousness if the farmers of the seventh congressional district are to be driven from the democratic party, who will then compose it?

If the men who call themselves "Jeffersonian democrats" are working for the preservation of democratic principles are they acting wisely in denouncing the men who have been the rank and file of the party for a quarter of a century?

The old question which we had thought settled in this district ten years ago again presents itself Are the grievances of democrats to be corected inside the party organization or outside, with the aid of democracy: mortal enemies?

The white men of this district are one people—all democrats. We hold with the immortal Grady that high above party policy, transcendently greater than all other questions which confront this people, is Caucasian supremacy in the south. By perfect unity only this can be maintained. A unity which will yield to no difference of opinion—perfect, unchangeable, steadfast unity.

Without endorsing or denouncing the policy and principles of the organized farmers, we plant ourselves on this rock:

The farmers and men of the citles, they are brothers with one past and one common future. The one is necessary to the other. Together they are shapping and building a grand destiny for the south. Divided like a temple, whose walls are unfinished, with roofless head, this land that we love will stand uncovered to the storms of ignorance, passion and hate which threaten it.

In the name of democracy we appeal for perfect unity.

Sendorn Wright, Chairman, J. B. Lapsley, Secretary.

MR. GRAVES'S POSITION.

MR. GRAVES'S POSITION. A good deal has been said about The Tribune's being on the fence in this campaign. I get this statement of Mr. Graves's position from him: "The Tribune has leaned somewhat in inclination to the Felton side, because of the over aggressiveness and radicalism of the alliance leaders, but it has never committed itself against the alliance candidate, and regarding Mr. Everett as the nominee of the organized democracy, will state its atti-tude in the campaign upon an interview to be held with Mr. Everett tomorrow, which must determine whether Everett's superior allegiance is to the alliance or the democratic

If Mr. Graves's convictions lead him against the majority of stockholders and citizens, he will resign the editorship of The Tripune to support them. W. G. COOPER.

THE SITUATION IN COBB. What Is Thought of the Action of the Executive Committee. Acworth, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]— Excitement prevails over the action of the executive committee of this county in throwing out the votes cast at Marietta and Cox's listrict in last Saturday's primary in order to declare Mr. Dempsey the nominee instead of Mr. Powers, the real choice of the voters.

Mr. Dempsey's Nomination.

SMYRNA, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]— The friends of Rev. A. G. Dempsey are jubilant over the action of the executive committee in declaring him one of the regular nominees of Cobb county. Mr. Dempsey is an old citizen of Smyrna, and has the unbounded respect and confidence of all who know him.

An intimate friend of his said, yesterday "The effort to make it appear that he is not regularly one of the nominees is too apparen need explanation. Of course everybody understands it. Even if the two precinct which were thrown out had been counted he would still have had a majority of the votes cast. These two precincts were thrown out simply on account of irregularity. No tally sheet was kept at all at the Marietta precinct, and if any was kept at Cox's it was not brought to the executive committee. When the committee acted Mr. Dempsey was not even at the courthouse, being willing to leave verything to the wisdom and the judgmen

Being regularly one of the nominees, Mr. Dempsey's friends here do not anticipate any trouble as to his election.

Card from Chairman Hardage. KENNESAW, Ga., September 3.—Editor Constitution: In justice to a few Cobb county democrats will you please give space to this explanation.

I see in your issue of today what purports to be I see in your issue of today what purports to be proceedings of the democratic executive committee of Cobb county on yesterday, at Marietta. Your correspondent at Marietta gave only a part of the proceedings. There were charges brought against Marietta district for fraudulent voting and irregularity of proceedings. In making the returns the managers did not return any registered list of voters, and the committee passed a resolution to throw out all returns that were irregular. It was true that Marietta and Cox's districts both gave Colonel Power a majority. It irregular. It was true that Marietta and Cox's districts both gave Colonel Power a majority. It was also true that the returns from both these districts were irregular, neither one having returned registered lists.

There was no charge of fraud against Cox's district. Had the votes been consolidated as returned Rev. A. G. Dempsey would have had a majority of three over Colonel Powers.

fesses. Fleming, Williams and Calvin Suc cessful. Augusta, Ga., September 3 .- [Special.]-This is the day of the young men, and Messrs.

Fleming and Williams were nominated for the legislature today over Judge Claiborne Snead and Colonel Wilberforce Daniel. Mr. Calvin would have been nominated anyhow as the only country candidate, but he came third in the vote, and would have been one of the nominees without the aid of the executive committee's ruling. Indeed, but for the rale. Mr. Calvin's vote would have been larger, many leaving his name off tickets, because he would be nominated any how, who otherwise would have voted for him Mr. W. H. Fleming led the ticket by a handsome vote, having 200 lead over Mr. Williams, who came next, and a majority over Colonel Daniel and Judge Snead added together. There were about 1,100 votes polled in the county, and Mr. Fleming got over 1,000 of Judge Sneed came at the end of the ticket, his small vote being attributable to his fight on Judge Eve, of the city court, and arraigning the latter's influence in the county

JUDGE CRISP'S SPEECH

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

THE GEORGIA CONGRESSMAN WINE NEW LAURELS.

A SENSATIONAL DAY IN THE HOUSE The Debate on the Breckinridge Case Furnishes Some Interesting Points-The

Tragedy of a Fair Woman. Washington, September 3.—[Special.]—Judge Crisp, of Georgia, delivered unquestionably the most magnificent speech this afternoon, on the Clayton-Breckinridge contested election case that has been made this Owing to the deplorable assassination of Colonel Clayton, the contestant, while he was taking testimony, this case has heen a fruitful theme of all the blood and thunder orators in the republican party, and there has been more defamation and villification of the south, generally, during the last two days than is usually crowded into an entire session. They are so warped by party passion that they insist on suspecting erime where no crime exists.

Judge Crisp built a complete fence around his opponents this afternoon, and then he un-limbered his heavy guns and poured round after round of grape and scrapnel into his helpless victims; none of whom had the temerity to stand up against him.

Mr. Bergin, a republican from New Jersey, who would march in where angels fear to tread, undertook once to cross lances with the Georgian, but the cunning force and the courage of conviction were with the latter, and he demolished his adversary in a twinkling. The judge was never in better form. He brought his interorgatory skill into the arena, and pierced the heart of the contention at every thrust. His questions were unanswerable, and with telling effect he pointed out the glaring inaccuracies of the majority report, and the "snake in the grass" method of striking at their opponents when they did not dare to do it openly and manfully. Repeatedly he challenged contradiction, but the radicals, who have been gloating over the murderous details of this "blood-stained" seat, sat as silent as the Egyptian pyramids. The judge has been the recipient of many ongratulations on today's effort, and the emocrats say it demonstrates completely that he is the leader of the minority, and should be the speaker of the next house. A Sensational Scandal.

A big sensation is brewing in congressional ircles, which is not unlikely to develop in the course of the next few days. The affair involves one of the most prominent republican representatives from Per

It seems that Mrs. Conkling, a handsome and dashing young woman, employed in the census bureau, was found dead in her room in this city last Monday. The coroner returned a verdict of death from careless self-administering of morphine. It looked like a common case, but that the busy tongue of dame rumor got to wagging. It was developed that Mrs. Conkling came from Philadelphia, and through the influence of the prominent and well-known republican congressman above referred to secured a lucrative place in the census bureau. She was always arrayed in costly and elegant raimant, and lodged and boarded at an expensive hotel in the west end. Her congressional paramour visited here constantly, and paid her the most marked attention. For a time they appeared as happy as two turtle doves. But the lady was of a lively disposition, and soon was seen out riding with other gentlemen. Then the elderly congressman referred to, whether he was jealous or she tired of him, she and her congressional beau quarrelled, and she left the swell hotel in the west end and took herself to the more obscure, but hardly less conspicuous house where she was found dead. It is regarded as a remarkable coinciat she occupie death the same apartments which once sheltered the fair, but frail Herminie Thiebault, the mistress and prime cause of the downfall of Silcott, the defaulting cashier of Sergeant-at-Arms Leedom, of the fiftieth congress. Denning Will Be Confirmed. Wanamaker has denied Clarkson's last request, and will not send another inspector to investigate Sharp's investigation of Denning. Instead of doing this he will ask the senate committee to confirm Denuing at once. Uness some new move is made to prevent it, Denning will be confirmed as soon as he can be reported from the committee.

The Bankers in Convention.

SARATOGA, September 3 .- The annual convention of the American Bankers' Association began shortly before noon in the town hall auditorium. A large number of representa-tive financial men of the United States were present. After the opening exercises, the president, Char'es Parsons, president of the State Bank of St. Louis, delivered his annual address. He treated of all the financial quesaddress. He treated of all the financial questions of importance, particularly of the silver question. On this latter question he argued that as congress had already passed a law for its solution that law should be given a chance to show how it worked. Agitating the question at present would only result in harm to the country.

FOUND IN THE WELL.

A Four-Year-Old Boy Drowned in a Well Yesterday.

NEWNAN, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]—immie, the four-year-old son of Captain J M. Glass, fell in a well on the home premise this afternoon and was drowned. He was missed about 20 clock, and when a thorough search of the community had been made without finding him the family became alarmed. Late in the afternoon it occurred to the searching party to examine the well on the lot. Upon going to the spot they were horrified to find the lifeless body of the little fellow floating on the surface of the water at the bettom. He had evidently been in the a Serious Accident.

Covington, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]—
A serious and painful accident happened to Mr. A. J. Farrill, of this place, today, under the following circumstances: Mr. Farrill is a tinner, and was engaged in putting a sheet iron roof on a brick storehouse which Mr. J. T.
Corley is having erected in the business portion of the city. He was on the roof of the building and near the edge thereof, when a roll of sheet iron which was being unrolled above him from the comb of the building escaped from the hands of the workmen who had it in charge and rolled down to where
Mr. Farrill was standing.

He attempted to stop it, but failed to do so, and it struck him with such force that he was thrown from the roof and fell to the ground, a distance of more than twenty feet. In falling his right arm struck a plank fence and was broken above the elbow, and the broken bone

By Which a Young Man Lost His Life in Madison.

Madison, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]—Mr. John Coile, of Madison county, was the victim of a horrible accident yesterday aftermoon, which resulted in his death. He was running the gin of Hon. Pope Gholston, in that county, and while standing near the engine, the driving wheel flew to pieces, tearing and crushing him terribly. He was removed to his home, and every attention given him. It was all without avail, and he after lingering in agony for several hours. He was a popular gentleman, and was a brother of Rev. William Coile, of Winterville. A peculiar coincidence is that his father was killed several years ago by a similar accident.

LUCY COBB RESUMES.

The Fame of the School Has Spread Over the Union.

Union.

Athens, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]—The Lucy Cobb institute opened another session today. It is more than ever a popular institution. Besides being thoroughly repaired, lighted with electricity and every modern improvement made, it has a faculty determined to do their full duty. The reputation of Miss Rutherford as a teacher has gone abroad over the union, and she is receiving a well-merited reward in the large number of scholars who will be in attendance this session. It will in all probability be the most prosperous session the institute has ever known. The public schools also opened today in fine shape and with a full attendance.

HE LOST HIS LITTLE TOE.

The Bravery of Rev. John Cartledge

Under the Knife.

Homer, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]—
Rev. John Cartledge is at present suffering from the effects of a serious and painful accident, which occurred a few days since, resulting in the loss of one of his toes. He was in the act of cutting away a limb from a peach tree, some distance from the house, and an awkward blow caused the ax to fall with great force upon his right foot. The blade entered the outside of his little toe, passed upward into the foot, nearly severing the toe from the foot, and only stopping until it had well nigh split the corresponding portion of his foot bedily open. The bones were badly fractured and a blood vessel severed, which caused alarming hemorrhage. He made his way to the house, bleeding at every step, and gently broke the Under the Knife. hemorthage. He made his way to the house, bleeding at every step, and gently broke the news of his misfortune to his good wife, who seeing the danger, ran immediately for a neighbor, who at once rode up to town, which is some four miles away, in quest of a surgeon. Dr. V. D. Lockhart responded at once, but the old gentleman was pretty weak from loss of blood when the doctor reached him. But he said he had got used to blood during the war, and was not easily scared, and told the doctor to go ahead; and, without an anæsthetic or stimulant of any kind, he lay across the bed and laughed and joked and anesthetic or stimulant of any kind, he lay across the bed and laughed and joked and never dinched, while the doctor amputated the injured toe, removed the splintered bones, tied up the bleeding vessels and sewed up the wound. After the operation was completed, he remarked that his blood was pure and his system in good condition, and he guessed it would heal rapidly and soon be well. Sure enough it was so and it was nearly well in enough it was so, and it was nearly well in our or five days.

It seems to be the prevailing opinion among the farmers of Putnam county that there will not be a bale of cotton in the fields by October 15th, next, so rapidly is it opening and being picked out. Already Eatonton has received 400 bales, something never before seen this time of the year in Putnam county. The weather continues hot, and the bolls are opening wonderfully rapid. Several farmers have been interviewed recently in regard to this question, and all seem to be of the same opinion. Some say they can hardly keep up with this picking. There will be comparatively no cotton in Putnam by Christmas, unless held by the farmers after being ginned and packed. picked out. Already Eatonton has received

A Card from Mr. Calvin.

EDITOR CONSTITUTION: My attention has been called to a communication in your issue of the 27th ultimo, from Mr. James Barrett, in which reference is made to myself and my membership in the alliance. For the information of allance-in the alliance. For the information of allancemen who read, your excellent journal, I destret to make a plain statement of fact:

I am not, as alleged, associate editor of The Augusta Chronicle. Years ago, under Genera Ranse Wright, I was news editor of the paper. In 1887, from April till July—the interim being the departure of Mr. J. R. Randall and the return of Mr. P. A. Stovall—I did considerable editorial work on the paper. work on the paper. For a number of years I was recognized as a staff correspondent of The Chron-icle, writing letters, over my initials, on agricultural, industrial and educational progress. M last formal letter on this line was written in May, '89, being a sketch of the member of the board of directors of the Georgia experiment station. This was previous to fay almission into the alliance. In all these letters, I sought to give to others information which had proved interesting and instructive to myself.

The middle of '89, I entered into an agreement for one year to contribute two or three columns of exclusively agricultural matter once a week to The Chronicle. That agreement expired in July last and by mutual consent was not renewed. and by mutual consent was not renewed.

The facts as to my connection with The Chronicle and my relationship to the Lippincotts were laid before the judiciary committee when the question of my eligibility was under consideration. In my remarks to the convention, I explained both mat-of my eligibility was under consideration. In my remarks to the convention, I explained both matters.

My recollection of the Barrett letter is as follows: Colonel Stephens came to me and said the executive committee wanted to see me. I went to the clerk's room where the committee was in session. President Livingston was sitting next to Chairman Corput. The letter was read and the enclosure noted. I stated I was ready to meet the charge. President Livingston said the proper course would be to report the matter to the convention to be read and referred. I am not positive, but my recollection is that Colonel Livingston remarked that the judiciary was the proper committee, and that as I was a member I would not, of course, act. The matter was reported to the convention, and on motion of Colonel Peek, referred to the judiciary committee. President Livingston appointed Mr. McDonaid, of Henry, to act in my stead. Let it be remembered that the judiciary committee passes upon all constitutional and statutory questions, and was elected by the previous annual convention. Their report was unanimous and unanimously adopted by 150 to 200 of the staunchest and truest alliancemen in Georgia. My eligibility was thus positively confirmed. The charges against Colonel Corput affected him as former president of the exchange, and were properly referred to the committee on the good of the order, which, if I am not in error, had been previously appointed by President Livingston. The committee's report vindicating Colonel Corput was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

"All that saved Corput in this last deal was the put was unanimously adopted by a rising vote.

In the closing paragraph of his letter, Mr. B.
says:

"All that saved Corput in this last deal was the fear of defeating Everett for congress. Therefore, the committee, like that of Calvin's, was pre-arranged before hand, and we have verdicts that carry no confidence or belief in them, as the appointments of the committees of investigation were too apparent even for a blind man to doubt."

As to the language quoted, I have nothing to say further than this: The gentleman composing the two committees mamed stand deservedly high in this state, outside, as well as inside the order. They nor their report need defense at my hands.

I beg pardon, Mr. Editor, for using so much of your valuable space. I know that the people care nothing about this or that man's eligibity to membership in the alliance. I know that fam eligible, and I have but one ambition in the order, namely, to help; in my humble way to make good its declaration of purposes and to carry out its cardinal doctrines. Kespectfully, and spun this yarn. "Lying in a deep ray "Lying in a deep ravine in the mountains of Santa Clara county, California, is the little village of New Almaden. So narrow is the guich that only one street is possible, and down the length of this ripples a stream of limpid water, fresh from moun-tain snows. Besides the quicksliver there are other products-Mexican children and rattlesnakes. It is necessary to set sharp-pointed stones on the threshold of each house to keep out the serpents.

"One day a mexican mother sat her little dusky daughter on the floor and went out to bake her bread in the brick oven, which several of the neighbors used in common. She was gone some time, and when she came back she found her baby time, and when she came back she found her baby surrounded by the beautiful reptiles—beautiful and hideous things, which filled the room. Paralyzed with terror she could not speak nor move. And the little one was in eestacy. It gave vent to little rapturous cries. Its black eyes danced with happiness. She played with the glittering things and let them enwrap her. Not one of them tried to harm her. They treated her with something like reverence.

of them tried to harm her. They treated her with something like reverence.

"At last, with a scream of desperation, the mother snatched up her protesting baby and called for help. The big miner women drove out the intruders amid the lamentations of the baby. And afterward, from childhood to maidenhood, this girl could wander at will through the canyon, without fear of molestation from any reptile, and the miners crossed themselves when they saw her, and said that she bore a charmed life."

CHARLIE RIVERS' DREAM,

How a Painter Was Rescued from a Life of Dissipation-A Vision that Came True.

The recent death of Charlie Rivers, the widely known painter of Fort Wayne, has revived the story of a remarkable dream of his that used to be current among his intimate friends. For many years in his life Rivers was given to habits of conviviality, and often drank too much. Upon these occasions the kindly attention which he usually paid to his wife was changed to a rudeness of behavior that shocked her relations. Her father, especially, keenly resented the harsh treatment that his daughter was forced to endure, and often threatened that he would bring about a legal separation of the pair. When the old gentlean was seized with his last illness Rivers conduct became more reprehensible. One day that he spent in Chicago was so given up to carousing that in the evening, when he board ed the train on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago railway for a five hours' ride home, he was very much under the influence of liquor. As he used to tell the story himself, says ondent of The Globe-Demograt, he at once fell into a troubled sleep and in a vision ecame the unwilling companion of his aged father-in-law. As he first saw the old man he seemed to be in an anxious frame of mind, beckoned him in a worried way and would not be satisfied until his son-in-law signified his willingness to accompany him in the direction of a dark grove, toward which the old gentlen pointed. Rivers all at once was overcome with an ungovernable thirst (nothing strange in this, one would say), and feeling certain they would find at least a spring in this cool place, hastened to join his relative and relieve his great anxiety. As soon as they had reached the woods, in different spots the trees seemed to part, and long tongues of fire leaped up through the open spaces thus formed. The strange part of all was that Rivers was insanely eager to drink this fire, and his companion was as frantically striving to lead him in an opposite direction. The old man told him these were unholy streams, that they maddened the souls and brains of all those who learned to love their taste, and even death itself would afford no release to the torments it brought upon its devotees. They soon came to the borders of a lake formed by the fiery streams running from these burning springs. The lake seemed like a huge mirror of tlame, in which he was shown his future history, if he should persist in his present dissipation. He saw his home, wife, children and himself and how all would change in the passing years. His wife the woods, in different spots the trees seemed would charge in the passing years. His wife grew rapidly old and careworn before his sight, and seemed to fear his home-coming more and more, while the home itself fell into a hovel. His children grew up so hate the one who had His children grew up so hate the one who had been their worst enemy, and struggled on through poverty and disgrace. The last picture was the most horrible of all. He saw himself as a most repulsive being, shunned by all, seeking to avoid the gaze of all respectable men, and finally becoming the slayer of the one he had once promised only to love and protect. This picture was the most vividly portrayed and the longest reflected in the lake. Rising and falling with the waives was the ghastly head of his wife, showing where it had been severed, as if by one deadly stroke of some sharp-edged instrument. The blood was still dripping, and added to the deep flame color of the waters. As he strove to flee in horror from the final scene, his companion shouted at his side: "You will spend all eternity in repeating this last act of your conscious being. This is my last warning. I pass from earth within my last warning. I pass from earth within

The dream made such a vivid impression on Rviers's mind that he was in a very nervous state when roused from his sleep at his jourstate when roused from his sleep at his journey's end. From the depot he was driven to his home in the suburbs of the city, a long two miles from the house of his father-in-law. He reached his door toward morning, and at once startled his wife with the statement that her father was dead. Questioned by her as to the correctness of his information, it appeared that he had no evidence but the vision on the train, which he asserted must be wholly convincing. Mrs. Rivers, in reply, assured her husband that she had called upon her father that very day, that he sat up in bed, smoked his pipe, and was unusually cheerful, evidencing, as she believed, his speedy convalescence.

The couple retired to bed, but no sleep came to Rivers. He remained broad awake, fearing another meeting with his irate father-in-law. Soon a loud knocking was heard at the door, and the painter screamed in terror to his wife: "Get up and go to the door. I tell you that your father is dead!"

Mrs. Rivers answered the knocking and ad-

Mrs. Rivers answered the knocking and admitted to the house Patrick Doyle, a young man who lived near her father's house. He related that the old gentleman had died during the night, and that his last words were about the night, and that his last words were about Rivers and his sprees. The painter hitched up his horse and conveyed his family to the residence of a friend. Nor did he venture to return again to his home until after the funeral, when his wife bore him company.

Rivers's friends aver that from the time when he met his father-in-law in his night ride from Chicago he was a changed man. Anyhow, whatever may have been the controlling reason, he thereafter forsook his cups and was both industrious in his business and loving to his wife until the end.

DECISIONS OB OFFICE

THE CONVICT LEASE.

THE MISSISSIPPI CONVENTION AGAINST THE SYSTEM,

Except Where Work Is to Be Done on the Levees-The Woman Suffrage Question-Other Matters.

JACKSON, Miss., September 3 .- The constitutional convention met at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, and resumed consideration of the report of the committee on penitentiaries, pro-viding for the abolition of the convict leasing After two hours debate the following proviso was made: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall

Provided, prohibit the legislature from authorizing the employment, under state supervision, of convicts by any levee board on any public levees under such provision and restruction as it may from time to provision and restruction as it may from time to time see proper to impose. Provided, further, That said convicts shall not be let to any contractor under said board. A great many of those who voted for this proviso, although opposed to the leasing of convicts, even to levee boards, did so upon the theory that it is unwise to forever tie the hands of the legislature on the penitentiary system that has not yet passed the experi-mental stage. It is argued that while the legislature may refuse to sanction the employment of convicts on levee works, it is not proper to give them power to do so, inasmuch as it may happen that the prison farm scheme will prove a failure.

The convention, at 6 o'clock p. m., adjourned without a final disposition of the penitentiary clause. The franchise committee decided unanimously today to vote as a unit in favor of its report of the suffrage question.

THE WOMAN SUFFRAGE QUESTION. Up to this time the convention has been del-uged with tracts in favor of woman suffrage, lished under the auspices of the Woman's Suffrage Association. Today a counter blast appeared in the shape of a document entitled "A Remonstrance," covering four pages of printed matter. Every member of the convention was furnished with a copy. The Remonstrance is an exact copy of the circular against woman suffrage which was extensively distributed among the voters of South Dakota recently, and consisted of extracts from the writings of Goldwin, Smith and others, together with statistics bearing upon the fate of the woman's suffrage movement at the hands of the legislatures of Vermont, Maine, New Hampshire and twelve other states and territories. The woman suffragists here boldly charge that the circular of remonstrance is the work of the anti-prohibitionists' who fear the influence of women in elections. appeared in the shape of a document entitled WILL NOT SUBMIT IT.

At a meeting of the judiciary committee held tonight, it was decided unanimously that the convention had authority to enact a constitution without submitting the same to the people for ratification. A report to that effect is in course of preparation, and will be presented tomorrow or next day. The conven will probably be goverened by this view of the case, although opposition is expected from a powerful minority.

THE VERMONT ELECTION.

A Heavy Decrease in the Republican Vote. M Heavy Decrease in the Republican Vote.
White River Junction, September 3.—
One hundred and sixty-six towns gave Page, republican, 25,724; Brigham, democrat, 15,024; all others, 225. Majority for Page, 9,775. The same towns, in 1888, gave Dillingham, republican, 36,927; Shurtleff, democrat, 14,620; all others, 1,074. Majority for Dillingham, 21,203, showing a decrease in the republican vote of 11,428, and a democratic gain of 374, while the orchibition vote is less by 150.

New Orleans, September 3.—A San Antonio special says: The republican state convention was called to order at noon. There are something over 500 delegates present, 40 per cent of whom are colored. Nothing was done today beyond effecting a temporary organization. Mr. Wright, of Lamar county, was put up by the whites for temporary chairman, and Cuney and his colored following pitted R. B. Hawley, of Galveston, against the Lamar man. The Cuney side won and will perhaps continue to win throughout the convention. The Cuney Crowd Won.

The Anti-Tillmanites Carry Charleston. The Anti-Tillmanites Carry Charleston.

CHARLESTON, S. C., September 3.—[Special.]

The anti-Tillmanites got together in great thape today, and made a clean sweep, electing delegates to the county convention in every precinct in this county and in every ward in the city. The total vote polled was 2,116, of which the Tillmanites polled 688 and the straightouts 1,428. This convention nominates county officers, as well as a delegation to the state convention.

The Campaign in Chattanooga.

Chattanooga, Tenn., September 3.—[Special.]—Hon. Henry C. Snodgrass, democratic nominee for congress for the third congressional district, opened the political ball here tonight. In his speech he favored the free coinage of silver and inflation of the currency, and opposed the federal election bill. His opponent will probably be H. Clay Evans, the present congressman.

Polk Mentioned to Succeed Vance.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 3.—From gentlemen who came here today from beyond the Blue Ridge, it is learned that The Western Farmer and Mechanic, a republican paper, is being widely and systematically circulated in that section of the state, and that it comes out for L. L. Polk for the senate, as Vance's successor. It calls upon alliancemen to support him. The paper is being privately circulated broad-cast, and is issued in the interest of H. G. Ewart, the republican candidate for consequence of the control of the contr gress, from the ninth district. The Single Tax Platform. The Single Tax Platform.

New York, September 3.—The single tax convention today adopted a platform presented to them by Henry George. The main points were that all men were created alike, with certain inalienable rights. No one shall be permitted to hold property without a fair return. There shall be no tax on the products of labor, and revenues for national, state and municipal purposes shall be raised by a single tax upon land values, irrespective of improvements, and absolute free trade. The platform was loudly applauded.

Applauded.

The Returns from Arkansas.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., September 3.—Returns from 556 out of 1,020 townships in the state give Eagle, democrat, for governor, a gain of 9,920 over his majority in the same place two years ago. This includes losses in Greene, Faulkner, Desha, Benton, Lincoln, Craighead, Jefferson, Poinsette and Crittenden counties, and includes partial returns from forty counties. If the same ratio holds up, Eagle's majority will approximate 34,000. Conservative estimates give 27,000 as a minimum.

Kansas Republicans.

Topeka, Kas., September 3.—The republican state convention met here today. A. H. Horton, chief justice of the supreme court; L. N. Humphrey, governor; William Higgins, secretary of state; A. T. Felt, lieutenant governor; L. B. Kellogg, attorney general, and G. W. Winans, superintendant of public instructions, were all renominated by acclamation. The contest for treasurer is brisk.

Nashville, Tenn., Semptember 3.—[Special.]—All the counties have now been heard from on the official vote for supreme court judge. The total vote polled was 202,317. This is more than 100,000 less than usual. The vote was divided as follows: Lea, 132,294; Smith, 69,974; East, prohibitionist, 49 votes; Lea's majority, 62,271. The Judicial Election in Tennessee.

Died from the Fall.

Spartanburg, S. C., September 3.—[Special.]—This morning Charles Hyder, a carpenter, employed in constructing the outbuildings of Converse college, was fatally injured by a fall. Whilst passing along the roof of one of the buildings his footing gave way, precipitating him to the earth. He fell onto a pile of brick and lumber, breaking his right wrist and back. He died this afternoon at 5 o'clock p. m. Mr. Hyder came to this place from Anderson.

INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION.

The President Sends in the Recommendation of the Recent Congress. Washington, September 3.—The president today transmitted to congress the recommendations of the international American conference, touching international arbitration, together with the letter of transmittal from Secretary Blaine. In his letter the secretary says:

The act of congress, approved May 24, 1888, anthorized the president to invite several other governments of America to join the United States in a conference for the purpose of discussing and recommending for adoption some plan of arbitration for the settlement of disagreements and disputes that may hereafter arise between them. In pursuance of this invitation, the conference recently in session at this capital adopted three reports:

1. Recommending a definite plan of arbitration for the settlement of differences between American nations.

for the settlement of differences between American nations.

2. Recommending the adoption of a similar plan by the nations of Europe.

3. Declaring that the right of conquest could not be recognized by American nations.

The President in his letter says:

The ratification of treaties contemplated by these reports will constitute one of the happiest and most hopeful incidents in the history of the western hemisphere.

WILL LOOK INTO THE MATTER. The President's Reply to General Barrun-

Washington, September 3.—Acting Secretary Wharton today sent the following telegram to the widow of General Barrundia in reply to her message to the president Monday evening: evening:
The president desires me to say he has received your telegram announcing the death of your husband, General Barrundia. While deeply sympathizing with you in your affliction, he awaits the official details of the occurrence necessary to determine his action in regard thereto. The matter, you may be assured, will receive the most careful attention.

The Raum Investigation Washington, September 3.—With the addition of the new member, Mr. Flick, of lowa, to replace Smyser, resigned, the special house committee investigating the charges against Commissioner Raum, resumed its labors this afternoon. The session lasted two hours, and was devoted to a discussion of questions of proceedure. No testimony was taken.

THE STRIKE A FAILURE.

A Row Among the Carpenters of Chicago. A Committee Denounced.

A Committee Denounced.

CHICAGO, September 3.—The carpenters' strike died in its borning, and today there are less than 700 carpenters who refused to go to work on Tuesday morning still out. President James O'Connell, of the carpenters' council, has been forced by the discontent of members of the union to resign. The action of the strike committee in authorizing carpenters who are receiving 375 cents an hour to return to work this morning has been severely criticised. Members of union No. 1, the largest in the city, assert that the committee exceeded their authority. Union No I held a meeting last evening, and the session was a stormy one. A committee was appointed to visit the carpenters' council this morning and vigorously protest against any of the men being allowed to return to work until all the men receive assurance from their until all the men receive assurance from their employers that the union scale of figures would be paid. There is confusion and chaos in the rank and file and consternation among the leaders. The employers assert that they have all the men they want.

They Went Back to Work. They Went Back to Work.

PITTSBURG, September 3.—The strike of the employes at the Westinghouse works was terminated by the men coming to the shops today and requesting their old places. This action is the result of a meeting of the strikers this morning, where it was decided that, inasmuch as they could not hold out any longer, they had better go back to work. The strike affected about 1,200 men.

THE STRIKE IN PANAMA. Troops Sent to Maintain Order-The Strikers Riotous.

PANAMA, VIA GALVESTON, September 3.—
The strike on the Panama railroad continues.
The strikers will not allow work to be done by outsiders. The telegraph wires were cut several times, and attempts were made to tear up the rails. Troops have been sent to Color to maintain order. Steamers will probably be detained on both sides of the isthmus in consequence of the strike.

WASHINGTON, September 3.—Orders were issued by the navy department today for the United States steamship Kearsarge, now at New York, to proceed at once to Aspinwall. It is supposed that this action grows out of the reports of the railroad strike at that place. Strikers Riotous.

The Floods in Austria. Vienna, September 3.—The Moldau river has flooded a portion of Prague, and has done much damage to the country between the Boehmerwald and the confluence of the Moldau and Elbe. Many villages in the Danube valley are partially submerged. The authorities are taking special precautions.

Called Upon the Pope First. ROME, September 3.—A painful impression has been created here by the fact that the officers of the Austrian man-of-war, Minerva, sought an audience with the pope before officially calling upon the ministry. Newspapers of this city denounce the action of the officers, and declare that it was a significant act of discourtesy to the Italian government.

The News from Brazil,

RIO DE JANEIRO, September 3.—A decree just issued grants the government a guarantee of state loans amounting to 50,000,000 milreis. The financial needs of most of the states are declared to be urgent. No interest is shown in the canvass for the election of members of the constituent assembly.

No Official Notice Sent.

London, September 3.—The Standard's Rome correspondent says that no official notice was received at the Italian foreign office that a French fleet was coming to Spezzia, and that it is now arranged to salute King Humbert

OUT INTO THE DARK.

The Pitiable Story Told by a Little Boy in Birmingham.

Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., September 3.—[Special.]
Charles Kirby, aged ten years, bareheaded and without money or relations, was a pitiable spectacle in the union depot. He told the following story: He and his father, J. M. Kirby, from Young county, Texas, were going to Orange county, Florida, where Mr. Kirby had purchased some real estate. They were both asleep on the north-bound Queen and Crescent train last night when the train stopped at a crossing south of Queen and Crescent train last night when the train stopped at a crossing south of here somewhere. The man sprang up, seized the boy's hat, ran out the car door and disappeared in the darkness. He had the boy's ticket. The little fellow was brought here and left. He says his father was injured about the head by being through from a horse not long ago, and the doctors say he is subject to temporary fits of insanity. It is supposed he had one of these spells last night. His action cannot be otherwise accounted for.

An Agricultural Missionary to Virginia.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 3.—[Special.]—
Professor Massey, of the agricultural college, goes to Richmond on the 25th instant, to make an address at a farmers' institute, which is to be conducted on the plan of those held in North Carolina. Mr. Whitehead, the Virginia commissioner of agriculture, writes Professor Massey that he is delighted to hear that he will help the Old Dominion in this, its first, agricultural movement. Professor Massey's subject will be, "The Dairy Cow, and How to Feed Her." John Robinson, commissioner of agriculture, said today that North Carolina had made great progress with these institutes, leading all the southern states.

THE ALABAMA COMMISSION

The Railroads Being Brought Into Harmony with the People. MONTGOMERY, Ala., September 3.—[Special.]—The railroad commission, which has been in session since Monday, today ordered the enlargement and additional improvements to be made in the control of the con to be made in the passenger depot at Day's Gap, on the Georgia Pacific, and announced that it had secured an agreement between the several railroad companies for the erection of several railroad companies for the erection of a handsome and commodious passenger union depot at Sheffield at an early date. The petition for a new depot at Scottsboro will have a further hearing on the first Monday in October. The board has reccommended to the superintendent of the Savannah and Western that when goods consigned to a merchant whose place of business is away from the railroad, that a reasonable time be given to come for it before making charges for storage. The board has under consideration complaints from Birmingham of discrimination on the part of the Kansas City road in favor of Memphis, which is attracting unusual attention. The board will inspect the Birmingham Mineral during the latter part of this week, and next week will be devoted to the inspection of the Louisville and Nashville main line, or the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia system.

HIS CAREER ENDED.

HIS CAREER ENDED. The Curious Story of a Recluse Who Lived in Wilmington, North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 3.—[Special.]—
Last night the body of Robert, N. Eagle, an aged man, was found in his room at Wilmington.
Three years ago Eagle went there, and lived almost the life of a hermit, cooking his meals in his room. He was very reticent, but always kindly treated, and appeared to have had money. Saturday he was last seen alive. His room was forced last night, and his body, naked, was found lying on two blankets on the floor. All the windows and the door were tightly fastened on the insade, and death was evidently from natural causes. There were some wounds at the throat, probably by finger nails. It was found that Eagle, who was some eighty years old, had been a lieutenant in the regular army in the war with Mexico, and was mentioned for gallantry in that war. He was in 1855 appointed a lieutenant. He was a native of a western state, but had lived in Texas, where it appears he left property. He was a cultured man and a good deal of manuscript was found in his room. Today by direction of Quartermaster Batchelor, he was buried in the national cemetery, at Wilmington. in Wilmington, North Carolina.

The two girls were the daughter and niece of the elder woman. Mrs. McIntyre had reached the street safely, but when she could not find her daughter and niece she darted back into the building after them, but perished with them. When the flames were subdued all three bodies were found lying together. The house had a number of other inmates, but they all escaped without serious harm. The fire is supposed to have been caused by Mrs. McIntyre's dissipated son, who came home drunk and upset a lamp in his bedroom. He got out of the herse safely and is now under arrest.

DESTROYED BY THE FLAMES.

Large Fire at Hiawatha, Kansas-Dam age Elsewhere.

A Large Fire at Hiawatha, Kansas—Dam age Elsewhere.

Hiawatha, Kan., September 3.—The worst fire ever known in the city broke out at 1 o'clock this morning in William Harner's livery stable and in less than three hours it had destroyed two and a half blocks in the business center of the city, causing a loss of at least $150,000. The greatest loss was the First National bank building, owned by Congressman Morrill. The vault, containing $50,000 in currency and many valuable books and papers gave way under the intense heat, and its contents were entirely destroyed.

NEW YORK, September 3.—Fire broke out in the jute-bagging factory of Peter Young, on Washington avenue, near the navyyard, in Brooklyn, at noon. Young's factory was entirely destroyed. The fire then spread to the kindling-wood factory of Hendrick Pieletke, immediately adjoining. The wholesale grocery store of Dlahn Brothers, on the other side of the jute-bagging factory, then caught fire. Dlahn Brothers carried a stock of groceries valued at $150,000, all of which, with the building, was totally destroyed. The total loss by the fire will be about $200,000, partly insured.

What Will be Worn in 1891.

From the Dry Goods Economist.

PARIS, July 5.—While the hot weather is still on us, and summer is barely in ita full bloom, those whose business it is to foresee, and in a certain whose business it is to foresee, and in a certain sense, to lead the public taste, the manufacturers and the designers, have already made their prepa-rations for the summer season of 1891. It is still too early to predict what will be actually worn next summer, and it is much easier to name the styles and fabrics which are more or less certain to find little if any favor.

Flowered designs in jacquard styles have and to not little it any tavor.

Flowered designs in jacquard styles have no friends. Fine, soft, one-color goods in Indian cachemire finish, and one color, striped, vigogne goods have all the chances of being extensively worn next year. Shaded stripes will fight for a place, and a good place, too, and ombre styles will be met with in all varieties, on Indian cachemire grounds, on vigogne and on soft cheviot. Broad shaded stripes in all possible combinations in sim-ple and combined, straight and crosswise and in ple and combined, straight and crosswise and in zig-zag style will be seen.

Changeant styles have many admirers who foresee their adoption. These styles may do very well on slik and half-silk goods, but the reproduction of the same on woolen goods is beset with so many technical difficulties that their commercial success on wool is out of the question until some method of overcoming these difficulties has been found.

Shaded styles have success assured. Some of the latest samples show shaded dots and bump designs between the stripes; shaded stripes alternate with one color and shaded pea designs in stripe. A lot of very fine stripes, or hair lines, combine into a broad stripe, which is bordered on both sides with fine shaded cube designs, the combination before your first that tion being very effective.

Large plaids have met with scanty favor this summer, although they had been brought out in fine color combinations. This will prevent their being sampled extensively for next year. On the other hand, small squares in subdued quadrangles, which are cut by lines that form larger squares, may find deserved recognition. English styles of may find deserved recognition. English styles of worsteds in gray, or made in small squares, occasionally rendered more effective by small silk knots, will also be worn.

Cheap beiges (vigoureux) will be much worn with shaded stripes, in knotted or oval designs, and other similar detached styles.

In imitation of the black ground muslin prints which were favorites last year in colored flower designs, similar styles have been introduced on cachemire. Black Indian cachemires are seen with small embroidered flowers in colors, with golden yellow wheat cars designs, in green leaf and weed embroidered designs. Very light voile tissues are being prepared, showing large squares

All the styles mentioned have good chances for next summer. It seems assured that soft fabrics and shaded styles will have a good run. A man's wife should always be the same especially to her husband, but if she is weak and nervous, and uses Carter's Iron Pills, she cannot be, for they make her "feel like a different person," so they all say, and their husbands say so too!

THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION SENT TO ANY ADDRESS.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 4, 1890. Chattanooga 29,000-Atlanta 67,000. The Chattanooga Times is hard to pin Jown to a definite line of argument in com paring the growth of Chattanooga with that of Atlanta. For a number of months before the census was taken it had articles sprinkled through its columns, from time to time, bragging on the growth of Chattanooga, and coupled with these self-laudatory articles were assertions of how much faster Chattanooga was growing than Atlanta. In fact, the growth of the city at the other end of the State road seemed to act as a red flag does to a bull-it was a constant source of irritation to The Times.

We did not pay any attention to its numerous criticisms of Atlanta, and, in fact, made nothing in the nature of a comparison until the census figures of the two cities were given out by the United States officers who had charge of making them up and compiling them. The Chattanooga Times, however, seemed to consider that it was its duty to continue to fire occasionally a shot at Atlanta, and consequently, a few weeks ago it had on its editorial page an article stating that Atlanta had preserved a "thunderous silence" about her census figures since the enumerators had got in their work, and crowed with genuine satisfaction over the fact that Atlanta's population was less than 67,000. It alleged that, in order to get even a growth of 29,000 above the last census, Atlanta had annexed one-fourth of Fulton county, by which annexation it said she had secured over 11,000 people. We showed, by the authority of Supervisor Thibadeau, that Atlanta had annexed only 980 with the new territorial area, and proved that she had not annexed one-twentieth part of Fulton county outside of the city.

Just here we might bring in one of Sam Jones's sayings: "It is always the hit dog that yelps." Atlanta accepted the census figures as correct, whereas Chattanooga had had her expectations so wrought up in advance that when the actual figures were announced, The Times says, one universal howl of disgust and indignation went up.

The Times took a new tack, and, in publishing a press dispatch from Washington, showing the remarkable percentage of growth of Atlanta, it stated that while Atlanta had increased over 73 per cent, Chattanooga had increased over 125 per cent. In a subsequent issue, however, not thinking of Atlanta, but criticising the percentage plan of comparison, The Times ridiculed it out of court, and, therefore, we follow The Times in sending the percentage basis of comparison to the rear. But, as a final resort, The Times comes down to the question of how many square miles each city contains, and says:

Chattanooga has a fraction over three miles of territory within her corporate limits. Atlanta has six miles—double our area. If Chattanooga had contained six square niles in 1880, as Atlanta did, our gain would have been, in the decade, someour gain would have been, in the decade, some-thing like 24,000 in that territory. Given the six square miles, and a half mile beyond that limit for "immediate suburbs," and our gain would be above 30,001 in the last ten years. Atlanta had 37,400 in 1880. Chattanooga had 12,800. On three miles we gain over 16,000; on six se miles Atlanta gains 27,000. Had we covered the same area as Atlanta our gain would have been R2 000, or 5,000 more than Atlanta's.

The Times forgets that each city had a large area of empty space to fill, and that Chattanooga's suburban territory, according to its own statement, has increased even more rapidly than that within the city limits.

Now let us confine Atlanta only to her city limits, which take a radius of one and three-quarter miles from the Union depot and we see she increased 29,000 in round figures. Will The Times claim, when we give it a radius from the Union depot in Chattanooga of one and three-quarter miles each way, which would include the city and that extent of suburbs, that the population in that area has increased 29,000 souls since 1880? We think not. Indeed, that is the population of the whole city.

The Times adds:

We can easily compare with Atlanta in actual city growth, in any particular, and have the best

All right. Suppose we compare the increase of wealth during the past year, in which Chattanooga has had a large influx of northern capital and Atlanta has had but little. Chattanooga gained less than $240,-000 on her previous year's assessment. Atlanta gained over $5,000,000 within the same time.

The Times says:

Atlanta "took in" liberally long ago. Chatta-nooga has foolishly confined herself to the village ortions of 1867, and even lost a populace Now, the truth is that, up to last year, when the city of Atlanta extended her limits a quarter of a mile in every direction, except where she struck West End, there had no been an inch of extension of her territory since the war. Her proportions, in other words, in 1880 were exactly her proportions at the end of the war. In the new area taken the official report shows that there are only 980 people.

The Times says: lation as far out as two and one-half mile make a population of 45,000, even according to the census count. The Constitution's statement of five-miles-away villages is a figment of that paper's able imagination.

On this point we will introduce The Chatanooga Times as our best witness. We find that it named the following as the suburbs of Chattanooga: St. Elmo, Hill City, Sher-man Heights, Ridgedale, Highland Park, Staleytown, Lookout Mountain, Fort Cheatham, East End, East Chattanooga and vicinity, Orchard Knob, Oak Hills and East The population of these added to that of the city caused The Times to say: "The above figures give a total of 43,795 for Chattanooga and suburbs."

Now, we merely wish to ask The Chattamooga Times how far are Sherman Heights,

East Chattanooga and Lookout Mountain from the center of Chattanooga? Our understanding is that, by the East Tennessee road, Sherman Heights is five miles; by the State road, East Chattanooga (otherwise known as Boyce) is five miles, and the top of Lookout ountain by the nearest possible way of travel is three miles, by the stage road six miles, and by the broad-gauge railroad it is fourteen miles. So far as our statement about the "five-miles-away villages" is concerned, we have The Chattanooga Times itself adduced as our only authority that it did include the villages as far away as above stated and called them Chattanooga's suburbs

We have given much more space in our columns to this discussion than was probably necessary, but we wished to treat The Chattanooga Times fairly and give the benefit of the review of its own inconsistencies.

As we have several times stated, Atlanta has no fight to make on Chattanooga, but wishes her well, and is rejoiced at her rapid growth, but it is useless for The Times to attempt to figure it out that Chattanoogs has increased as rapidly in population as Atlanta has.

Such a statement is on par with its state ment that Chattanooga is "the healthiest city." In a recent issue The Times compares Chattanooga with a number of other cities, and bases the death rate for Chattanooga on a population of 40,000, after its own columns had shown that the population was 29,109. It would have been just as consistent for The Times to have estimated the population at 50,000 instead of 29,000, which it really is, and if it had done so, it would have shown Chattanooga to be not only the healthiest city, but healthier than almost any habitable place.

There is Room for It.

A correspondent at Thomasville writes to THE CONSTITUTION, and makes a suggestion worthy of consideration.

The suggestion is that a number of At lanta business men and capitalists should organize a life insurance company. A solid and reliable company would not only keep a good deal of our money at home, but it would lend large sums at a low rate of interest on long time, and thus aid in solving the cheap money problem.

There is room for such an enterprise, and we have in Atlanta a number of brainy capitalists whose names would guarantee the success of the undertaking.

Within the past few years great industries, flourishing building and loan associations, and strong banking corporations have been started in this city. The men who are back of these enterprises have the confidence of the public, and a life insurance company organized and controlled by them could be made one of the most popular and useful institutions in the southern states.

A prosperous life insurance company is owerful factor in developing the material nterests of its region. It places its money where it will be absolutely safe, and is satisfied with a very low interest on account of the substantial nature of its securities.

The south needs such an enterprise, and Atlanta is the place for it. The men and the methods that have made this metropolis rise from the ashes, are able to make a success of an insurance company, or any other venture, when they pull together.

It is to be hoped that the suggestion of our Phomasville correspondent will receive due attention.

A Blackguard's Nomination.

It turns out that the re-nomination of Blackguard Cannon for congress is not relished by the honest and respectable republicans of his district. The convention, it it said, was made up principally of postmasters and government employes who owe their positions to Cannon. The day after the convention had accomed its work, the three republican papers in Douglas county came out in leading editorials denouncing Cannon, and bolting his nomination. One of these papers declared that he must be forced off the ticket. There are several other republican papers in the district which refuse to support him.

It seems to be the general impression that the decent republicans in his district will refuse to support him, some of them contending that he has not only disgraced himself. out has placed a stigma on his district.

Under the circumstances, the democrats have reasonable hopes of carrying the district. A dispatch from Tuscola says that Cannon's defeat is almost assured, and certainly it would be a great victory for decency if the blackguard could be left at

A New Apportionment.

The talk concerning a new apportionment bill is, the natural outcome of the completion of the population statistics of the present census.

Senator Edmunds's resolution for a recess has caused the sensational rumor to be cir culated that a new apportionment is to b made at once in the interests of the republi can party.

It is to be doubted whether there is any substantial foundation for this rumor. Under a re-npportionment act the states gaining new members will have to provide for their election in order to seat them in the next congress. This would make it necessary for the state legislatures to pass re-districting acts, or elect the new members at large, and it would be difficult to arrange everything satisfactorily in some of the northern states.

We are in the dark as to the numerical basis of the next apportionment. The clerk of the house is a political veteran whose opinion in such matters carries weight, but he can form no opinion. The basis may be increased, or it may be left as it is. He thinks that the house is large enough now. With additional members it would grow more unwieldy. Still, it goes without saying that the states having a large increase in population will demand more congress men, or display bitter dissatisfaction. If the membership of the house is to be enlarged, it will be difficult to seat the new statesmen. There is room for only a few more desks, and the hall will have to be remoddled if many new desks are to be put

It has been suggested that benches might be substituted for the desks, after the fashion of the British house of commons, but this was tried in the thirty-sixth congress, and lasted only one session. Our congressmen do not propose to inconvenience them-selves. They must have desks where they can write their letters and keep their documents, If they were compelled to sit on benches without any desks they would have nothing to occupy their attention beyond the business and the debates of the house, and they are unwilling to give up their time to anything of so little interest to them. So it is not likely that the bench system will be tried again.

The new apportionment is in the nature of a sealed book. It is simply impossible to forecast it. One thing is certain-the re publicans will spare no efforts to make it work to their advantage, and this fact makes it tolerably certain that nothing will be hastily done. It is of vital importance to the party in power to have all the machin ery of apportionment so arranged that the doubtful republican states will not have to run the risk of electing a number of new congressmen at large. Under the circumstances, it is probable that a good deal of time will be devoted to the consideration of this business, and our spolitical system will be spared any sudden shock. No matter when it comes, the south has very little to gain from the change, and by way of consolation it may be remarked that she has

The Pennsylvania Contest.

Editor McClure, of The Philadelphia Times, who is one of the keenest political observers of our day and generation, is of the opinion that everything is not altogether lovely for Delamater and the republicans in Pennsylvania. Colonel McClure goes so far as to say that if the election were to occur today, Delamater would be defeated by Pattison, the democratic candidate, by not less than 50,000 votes.

The editor of The Times says that the conflict in Pennsylvania will be one of the most earnest and desperate contests known to the political history of the state. The discontent among the republicans and the changes that have been brought about are not chiefly local, but are the result of the demoralization that has taken place under the violent policy of the party leaders in congress, and by the prostitution of protection to wanton, wicked taxes on labor to gratify banded greed.

This is Editor McClure's opinion, and it is an opinion that is worth something. He then goes on to make an exhaustive review of the situation in all parts of the state, showing the nature and extent of the revolution that is taking place, and thus con-

Such is the political outlook on this, the oper ng day of the great battle of 1890. The mai to be overcome is not 80,000, as many inconsider-ately assume. None pretends that a fairly contested election in Pennsylvania can give the re-publicans over 40,000 majority, and the present copeful condition of the democrats assures not only the full vote of that party, but it assures a solid vote for its state ticket. There are yet two months for political tides and ebbs, and the be two months of exhaustive effort on both sides. Can Delamater turn the adverse tides in his favor, or are they like the tides of the Pontic sea that know no ebb? With a new and exceptionally potential independent-republican movement soon to assaif Delamater in the rear; with a full epublican state committee organized to support Pattison: with the industrial voters of sh with a demoralized party majority in congress widening and deepening distrust in and contempt for republican policy and authority, and with congress certain to continue its disturbing and often disgraceful labors for a month, whence drift come the revulsion that could make Delamater a opeful candidate for governor?

Well, if the democrats lead off with a great victory in Pennsylvania, a state that has been given over to Onavism it will be an omen of victory in 1892, when the whole people will have an opportunity of condemn ing the vicious policy of the republicans.

Reciprocity Is Free Trade.

Mr. Blaine's proposition to admit some articles free of duty from certain countries, provided these countries take the duties of our products, is practically free trade to a certain extent.

Extend the application of this principle to all products of all countries, and the result would be absolute free trade.

There is no other view to take of it. The ase of the word reciprocity cannot change the facts of the case.

It is one of the most startling incidents under the present administration that a life. long protectionist like Mr. Blaine should propose the experiment of free trade on a limited scale, and actually persuade the advocates of the McKinley high tariff to endorse his scheme

The followers of Mr. McKinley occupy a most indefensible position. They are for protection per se, and yet in certain exceptional cases they are for free trade pure and

After the republicans bring their a sober thought to bear upon these conflicting theories, they will, doubtless, come to the conclusion that the plumed knight is a very unsafe leader. When the party commits itself to the reciprocity idea, it straddles the tariff fence and becomes the champion of two theories as antagonistic and as little likely to mix as oil and water.

IN HIS Maine speech, Mr. Blaine alluded to neither Reed nor the force bill. He evidently regards both as dead issues.

A FORMER clerk in the pension office, who was removed for using foul language about Mr. Cleveland, has been appointed consul to Breslau. Obscenity and bestiality appear to be at a premium in the republican party.

SOME INFORMATION THAT IS INTER-ESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE

With Plenty of Gossip to Make the Column Bright-What Atlantians Have to Say.

THE SCOTCH-IRISH SOCIETY.-The meeting of the Scotch-Irish Society Monday night was so en-tertaining that a new interest has been infused in the society's affairs.

day, "that the next national congress will be held here in Atlanta. A committee has been appointed to work to that end, and to judge fr cers of the society I am confident that th vention can be worked to be held here. At our next meeting we will have several interesting papers read, among which will likely be an interesting discussion as to hether Andrew Jackson was born in America or Ireland. It is certain that he was a Scotch-Irishman by descent, and it has always been argued as to whether he was born in Ireland or America Some claim that he was born on board a vessel.

Other questions of biography and history pertaining to the society will be discussed, and we will have the meetings in structive as well as entertaining. New members are constantly enrolling and the society grows bigger every day.

A ROUGH AND TUMBLE LIFE.-Captain Blon. A ROUGH AND TUMBLE LIFE.—Captain Blon-dell, the champion ocean swimmer of America, left last night after giving two performances of fancy swim-ming in Atlanta. "It is a rough and tumble sort of life. I lead, said he at the Kimball last night, as he came in dripping with water and his trons, ers covered with mud, but, after all, it is the most fascinating life I could lead, and what does a big stout fellow like me care for getting a ducking by falling out of a boat now and then like I did this afternoon. I love it, for I am at home in the water, rain or sh all the year round.' TALKING OF WEATHER .-- "I am satisfied that the TALKING OF WEATHER.—"I am satisfied that the weather here in Atlanta," said Mr. Robert Miller, of the Atlanta Real Estate exchange, "is the most delightful all-the-year-round climate in America. Some friends of mine recently went back to St. Paul, where they once lived, to spend the summer; they found the heat almost unbearable. Here one can very conveniently live the year round, and it is can very conveniently live the year round, and it is the recognition of that fact that makes people from all parts of the south come to Atlanta to live. Atlanta has got past the doubtful point, and her destiny is to become a big city. There can be no dubt about that."

SKILLED LABOR IN DEMAND .- "It is almost impossible," said Mr. Will Venable, a day or two ago, "to get hold of skilled labor these days. Carago, "to get hold or skilled labor these days. Car-penters, mechanics, and skilled workmen of all kinds are in great demand, and they all command good wages. I have had to send to Augusta and Macon for workmen, and could use more

THREE GOOD MEN.—"If I had the power," remarked Mayor Glenn, yesterday, "I would keep three members of the present council in office, at all odds. I don't know three/men in Atlanta that can take their places next year.

"Those three men are Kontz, Inman and Hirsch. "Each one is peculiarly valuable as the chairman of a committee. Mr. Inman's financial stand-ing would be an incalculable benefit to the city in floating the bonds that are to be put on the market next year. So with Kontz on the waterworks ittee and Hirsch on the hospital commi "But I'll tell you why those three men will be particularly valuable next year.

"Somethree men, in the position they now occupy on the waterworks commission, will be the for a contract to furnish the city with water. That will entail a large expenditure of money, and the people will be quick to suspect trickery and tobbery. "What we need is three men that will be abso-Intely above suspicion. The people ought to be perfectly satisfied that the contract was an honest one. With these three men there would be no suspicion of wrong. The people would know it was all right. Where will you find three more men A STATE TEMPERANCE LAW .- "One of the most important measures to come before the next legis-lature," remarked a prominent prohibitionist yes-terday, "will be a state temperance law. You emember the state temperance convention at its last session appointed a committee to draught a bill to be introduced in the next legislature. That committee is all at work now. Each one is to correspond extensively, getting all the ideas he can, and draught a bill. Then the committee will meet, and by comparing their separate bills they will agree upon the best line of policy, and embody it in a composite bill. We believe that the alliance legislature will pass a conserva-tive state prohibition law. This is the best opportunity we have ever had, and if we work wisely, advocating temperance with temper ance, our work will stand."

"Will it be total prohibition?"
"No. Even if that were passed itably be undone by the re-action. What will finally be agreed upon, I think, will be some plan more or less like the 'dispensary system' now is

A SENSATION THAT WAS SPOILED. -Policeman John Abbott tells quite a good story about a mysterious trunk that passed through Atlanta a short

"It was at the East Tennessee depot the other "It was at the East Tennessee depot the other morning," the story goes, as he gives it. "A call came in for a man to go there and of en a trunk which was giving the trainmen a great deal of uneasiness on account of the fearful odor which it emitted. The trunk had been brought through rom the north, and between here and Chattanoogo it created something of a sensation. You could smell it, the conductor said, all through the train, and the general idea was that it contained the remains of a dead person. When I got there at the depot, the baggage master turned the trunk over to me for investigation. He didn't want to carry it any further without knowing what was in carry it any further without knowing what was in it—what caused the uncomfortable smell.

"I got the trunk out in the middle of the car, and began untying the ropes that held the lid down. I felt pretty ticklish about that time, too. I expected to find a lot of chopped up human beings bob up when the lid came off, and, judging by the defunct odor that came through the cracks, it must have been in there a long time. I was certain that we were going to have a chapter of another Cluverius tragedy here in Atlanta.

"Finally I got the trunk open, but there was nothing unusual on the inside except a more uncarthly smell than I ever heard of before. It was a ladies' trunk and was filled with nice clothing and other fancy things. But that smell! Whew! I can almost smell it yet. What do you reckon caused it! Only an old towel half filled with the remains of a Detuch girl's lunch, mixed with the caused it! Only an old towel half filled with the remains of a Dutch girl's lunch, mixed with the carcass of a defunct rat. The Limburger cheese had evidently killed the rat. How it got in there, in the hat compartment, I don't know. It is the truth though. I fixed the trunk up again, but the smell was still with it, and I'll bet my billy they opened it in Macon again.

was a sad blow to the hopes of those who loved her so dearly.

Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Askew, and her aunt, Mrs. Gay, were with her in her last hours.

Her peaceful death was in keeping with her pure and beautiful life, and the bereaved husband, parents and friends have the sweet consolation of feeling that hers was a life that knew not the fear of death, and that she simply fell asleep to awake in a blessed eternity of light and love. BOARD OF EDUCATION TO HOLD A MEETING THIS AFTERNOON.

The Schools Full and the Children Still Come Seats-What Is to Be Done?

There will be a special meeting of the board of education this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The meeting is for the purpose of consider-ing what is best to be done in view of the present inadequate school facilities.

All the schools are full, and Superintenden Slaton's office is still kept busy attending to the applicants for seats. Just what number of children have made application for seats, and who cannot be seated in the gramma schools, cannot be gotten at as yet, but Major Slaton is authority for the statement that the total will go up into the hundreds. Reports will probably be submitted at the meeting of the board this afternoon, showing as near as possible the exact condition of the schools, both grammar and high schools. Some applicants for seats have been waiting since the middle of last term, and in several nstances parties who made the application are still waiting to be accomodated. When cold weather sets in, Major Slator says it is likely that there will be a falling off in the number of children attending the primary grades, and this will allow others to take their places.

So clamorous are the applicants for places in the grammar schools that the rule regarding absentees will be rigidly enforced. Pupils who are absent without prompt and acceptable excuses will be superceded by the children who are standing at the doors waiting for admission.

admission.

Additional seats have been put in the Girls' High school, and every possible shift made in the grammar schools to give the utmost accomodation to the excess applicants.

Superintendent Slaton's patience is sorely taxed in impressing upon the crowded-out applicants the necessity for having patience until the crush is relieved by the completion of the two new school houses.

Right here the council and the board or edu-cation might take a pointer. If next year's increase is as great as it has been this year, and there is every indication that such will be the case, even these additional school houses will be wholly incapable of relieving the pressure on the other schools to that extent where all the children who want to be admitted to the public schools can be ad-

THE GRAND JURY FINDS FORTY-SIX BILLS.

Sheriff's Sale of Barrels-A Verdict of $60 Against the City-The Work of the City Court in Clearing Out the Jail.

There have been lively times around the rthouse this week. The grand jury adjourned Tuesday to meet again today. During the session forty-six true bills were found, forty of which were cases of felonies and six misdemeanors.

Among the felonies was one rape case, that of Kit Glanton, now in jail on a charge of committing an outrage on the little elevenyear-old girl on the day of the midsummer estival.

There were several other cases in which the offense, in case of conviction, would be capital, but the parties are still at large and their names are withheld from the public for obvious reasons.

SALE OF STOCK. Sheriff Thomas sold at public outery 670 shares of The Southern Alli-ance Farmer, shares valued at $25 each yesterday. They were purchased principally by Mr. T. A. Hammond, as attorney for interested parties, and Mr. Sappel, of the company. The prices ranged from $18 to $21.50 per share.

The sale grew out of a levy, the result of a suit, the details of which have been published in these columns.

Dirt Broken in Athens

ATHENS, Ga., September 3.—[Special.]—Dirt was broken on the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railway within the city limits today. The workmen are now grading near the Oconee river, and the route will be pushed at snee through the city. A costly and substantial bgidge will be built eighty-five feet above the Oconee. It is expected that trains will be running into Athens by next June. The Investment in Railways.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., September 1.—Editor Con-citation: Will you be so kind as to answer this inquiry?
What is the total value of all the railroads in the United States, including all their property or appurtenances thereto?
The third annual report of the interstate commerce commission gives the capitalization of railways in the United States on the 30th of June, 1889, as follows: Stocks, common and preferred, $4,251,190,719, being 47.46 per cent of the total. Funded debt, $4,321,856,023, being 47.94 per cent nt liabilities, $442,128,632, being 4.90 per

Total capitalization, $9,015,175,374, for 153,385

As enquirer doubtless knows, the capitalization As enquirer doubless knows, the capitalization of railways is generally larger than the amount actually invested. It frequently happens that the funded debt covers the cost of both roadbed and rolling stock, and the common stock is a clear profit for the projectors. If the road will pay anything more than operating expenses and interest on its funded debt, the remainder, diwided out among the stockholders, is the rate of nterest which fixes the value of their stock.

Right here comes in an important point. When stocks are held for speculative purposes ther verything possible is run into dividends in order to boom stock; and this is frequently done at the expense of betterments which have been cut off in er to swell dividends.

order to swell dividends.

It is a singular fact, possible only under the corporation system, that very little more than a fourth of the capitalization will control the management and policy of American railroads. As the average market price of stock is much below par, the cost of a controlling interest may be even less than a fourth of the capitalization.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN.

What ups and downs there are in the world of the stage-especially the downs. Take Edmund Collier, for instance. Collier was here last night doing the principal role in "After Dark," a fairly good position, doubt-less, but there was a day—and not very long ago—when Ed Collier was looked upon as the most promising tragedian on the American I shall never forget the impression he made upon me the first time I saw him. The "Virginius," John McCullough's grand production, in which Fred Wards Icillius, Kate Forsyth, the Virginia and Ed Collier, the Appius Claudius. The horror which filled my youthful heart as I watched Appius Claudius, is beyond description. In that trulyremarkable production, Collier's Appius Claudius stood on a plane of equality with McCullough's great rendition of the role of the Roman father, and Edmund Collier was looked upon as the most promising of all the actors of the McCullough school McCullough, it is said, so regarded him, and frequently said that he wanted the play "Virginius" to go to Collier after his own death. The sad circumstances surrounding the end of McCullough made such disposition of his property impossi-ble, and when the play was sold Mr. Collier was unable to purchase it. That failure threw him out of the lines of the "legitimate" and well, he's a good actor wherever you put him, but he is a long way from being where McCullough and his other friends expected him to be. Had he got "Virginius" it would have

Dr. Charlie Roy reached Atlanta yesterday and will spend ten days with his parents and friends here at his home. Dr. Roy is now at the Charity hospital, New York, and is make ing an enviable representation in his work. His hospital service expires on the first of next April, and after that he will return to Atlanta to continue the practice of his profession.

It seems to be the fashion just now for newspaper writers to devote a larger portion of the space allotted to them to laudation of Grand Master Powderly, of the Knights of Labor. Mr. Powderly is undoubtedly a man of many strong points, but I must confess that I was disappointed in what I saw of him during the Knights of Labor convention here.

Powderly is a dictator in his methods, and rules with an Iron hand.

It may be that his rough, gruff and ill-mannered way of treating people with whom he is thrown, is needed in his business, but if he treats newspaper men of the north like he treated those here, his friends among the boys must be few and far between.

Ben Dodson, general agent of Cleveland's "Magnificents," and George B. Baker, his assistant, are here looking after the interests of the great minstrel show.

"Punch Wheeler and I," he began with an air of truthfulness that would have done credit to Punch himself, "were with the only show that ever came through the south that was absolutely shut off from playing return engagements. We floated down the Mississippi river, but we couldn't float back." The fire bell rung out just then.

One of the new novels which Frank Lester showed me the other day bears the rather suggestive name "Flirtation." It is the lates candidate for favor with the class of readers who delight in French and Frenchy novels, and has the merit off being well written—a merit which most of the imitators of the French school of popular fiction do not sess. There is a vast difference between slightly suggestive story of some of the the sightly suggestive story of some of the leading French novelists and the eratic stuff which is being daily ground out by weak and silly young American women. Not that I approve of either—far from it; but, as in everything else, the imitations in this too popular realm of fiction are very much worse than the originals.

Only the persons who endeavor to keep up with new productions at the theaters of New York can realize the wide diversity of opinion York can realize the wide diversity of opinion that exists among the critics of the newspapers. Last week I was especially anxious to see how Southen's production of "The Maister of Woodbarrow" went. First, because we must all feel an interest in the career of this brillant sou of a brillant father, and, second, because 1 something of the author of the play. good," "very bad," and "betwixt and be tween" were the various decisions of the various critics, and it was a case of pay-your noney-and-take-your-choice with the rea

So I know very little more about "The Maister of Woodbarrow" than I knew before. But I do know that the play was written by an exceedingly clever young Englishman, who is bound to make a mark in literature That is Jerome K. Jerome. My attentio was first attracted to his work by a small "Idle Thoughts by an Idle which I found at Les-Fellow," ter's some months ago, and with which I whiled many a lonely hour on the Georgia railroad. Jerome is an optimist of the most delightful type. He looks on the bright side of life, smiles on the world, and in the days when he didn't know where the next meal was to come from, was happy. And he is happy now in the days when everything he writes finds a market. With one play in the hands of Mr. Sothern and the other eleven members of the Lyceum company, another soon to be produced at Daly's, and still others on at some of the English theaters, Jerome seems to be on the top wave of success. It pays to smile on the world. Cynics and pessimists have their places, but the world loves these happy natures which always find the right side of life.

Ed Kirby, the East Tennessee ticket agent, who is just back from a visit first to Denver and then to the Pacific slope, is enthusiastic over "that western country." The climate of Colorado seems to have struck him particularly, but the lack of rain impresses everybody who goes to Colorado. I noticed, a few days ago, a unique theory advanced by Senator Jones, who has made a study of the irrigation question.

"I have a theory," he said, "that if large quantities of dynamite or other powerful explosives were sent up by balloons to a great height over these arid plains and then exploded, either by time fuses or by electricity over wires attached to the balloons, the effect would be to gather clouds and precipitate rain. Of course, the theory is as yet untried. We have been trying to get a small appropriation to test it. But there are some experiences that favor its reasonableness. For instance, when the Union Pacific road was being constructed over the Rocky mountains vast charges of explosives were daily set off in the rocks. In regions where rain had not fallen for years, the en gineers tell us that after the blasting operations began and while they continued, rain fell constantly for six months. When the blasting ceased the rain stopped. It is common history that after every great battle of modern times rain has fallen copiously. Now, if explosives on the earth's surface will produce such results, why may not better results be produced by explosions in mid air?"

PART OF HIS BRAIN GONE. Four Inches of a Chicagoan's Skull Is Removed-He Will Live.

From The Chicago Herald. When Joseph Lepwiskie of 369 Thirty-second street fell on his head at the South Chiond street felf on his head at the South Chicago rolling mills July 29th, his skull was fractured so badly that Drs. Lee and Bouton of the county hospital found it necessary to remove a section four inches long from the left side of the head. Some of the brain texture had escaped through the open wound, and the question arose as to whether Lepwiskie would ever retain a sound mind if an operation was successful. The man is a laborer, thirty years old, of strong and athletic frame, and he does not appear to suffer greatly from the accident. not appear to suffer greatly from the accident.

After taking the broken fragments of the skull carefully from the brain, the scalp was sewed together over the injured part. The effect on the brain, however, extended to his left side, and from head to foot he is paralyzed. The chances are that he will recover from the local and from head to foot he is paralyzed. The chances are that he will recover from the local injury to the brain, but not from the paralysis. The brain presses on the scalp, causing it to bulge out beyond the normal scalp, but a soft, half-bony structure is beginning to form in place of the removed skull section. The paralysis extends along the left side of the body, and it is a remarkable feature of this case that the line of departation. the line of demarkable leature of this case that the line of demarkation between the sound half of the body and the paralyzed comes ex-actly in the center of the body from the fore-head downward. The left wing of his mus-tache may be pulled savagely, but he cannot feel it, but the moment an attempt is made to touch the right he at once objects. is perfectly conscious, his digestion is good and that he will survive the operation many years.

The Man and the Smasher.

While we were waiting at Trenton for th Long Branch train a lot of baggage had to be transferred, says the Detroit Free Press. manner in which it was handled excited the indignation of a score of passengers, but no one wanted a "scene" and no protests were made until the last trunk was reached. It was an ordinary zinc trunk, well strapped, and stout enough to go around the world with fair usage. The man on the truck ended it up, gave it twist and a fling, and it struck on end with a crash and burst open. The owner had been quietly surveying operations, and as the climax came he stepped forward and asked:

"How much will it take to repair that "Damfino," was the reply, followed by

"Then I will post you in your business," quietly remarked the passenger.

He was a solid, broad-shouldered man; with one grab he had the baggageman by the hip and shoulder and held him aloft as if he had been a bundle of hay.

"What's the damage?" he asked as he prepared for a heave.

"Here—stop—hold on—don't!" shouted the erri fied destroyer of baggage.

"What's the damage to my trunk?"
"Five d-dollars, and I'll pay it."

"Oh, you will? very well."

His victim had scarcely reached his feet when he fished up a $5 bill. His face was whiter than flour, and he trembled so that he had to sit down.

"Don't you forget that a passenger's trunk has all the rights of a passenger," said the man as he turned away to light a cigar and walk up and down.

James Wallick Tonight.

The famous "Cattle King" will be presented at the opera house tonight by James H. Wallick. This play is a spectacular melodrama, full of comedy, of fun and of thrilling incidents. A carload of seenery and horses help to give a perfect realistic reproduction of western life, and the immense popularity of the show is the proof of its merits.

immense popularity of the show is the proof of its merits.

"The story of Bob Taylor, the American Cattle King," says the enterprising advance agent, "follows close, and is founded upon the incident; and life of one of Texas' greatest cattle kings, whose herds are counted by the thousands and his ranches cover hundreds of miles. On the firs production in San Antonio, Texas, the famous cattle monarch was in front with a party of friends; so real to life was the picture, that at the end of the second act his friend said 'Why, old man, that's you.' 'Dog gone me, but it is. I'll go back on the stage and shoot that man Wallick for taking me off like that.' The next day he bought over 400 of the best seats in the house and all the boxes for his friends to see him on the stage; so perfect was Mr. Wallick's makeup and true to nature, even sitting the saddle of the great ranchman, that after the performance his friends were betting wine that he was playing the part, and it was only when Mr. Wallick came in and stood beside the real American cattle king of Texas, that they were convinced of their mistake, they initiated the actor and made him a real cowboy by painting San Antonio red. It is needless to say that the real cattle king and the actor are the greatest of friends."

JONES AND SMALL. The Georgia Evangelists Get Together-A

Northern Criticism

New York Tribune Round Lake Special.

The week just ended has been one of the most teresting in the matter of discourse that the lake has known for many years. Sam Jones, the Geor-gia evangelist, has for four or five years been a great attraction at Round Lake. He has alway commanded his five or six thousand hearers dur-ing the seven days of the week. This year, how-ever, he has been very sick. At one time it was generally thought he could not be present. But upon the urgency of the association he undertook at a late the urgency of the association he undertook at a late day to be present for at least half a week, and he arrived on Thursday morning. In the meantime, to speak it secularly, luck was with the association. Sam Small, who is well remembered as a co-laborer years ago with Sam Jones, happened to be in the neighborhood. and he gladly agreed to fill up the interim of Jones's absence. Again happened along a colored brother named Grandison, principal of the Burnett University, in North Carolina, and he developed so fully that fervid eloquence of the tropies that he was invited to stay over. Then appeared, on invitation, the new evangelist, the Rev. G. R that he was invited to stay over. Then appeared, on invitation, the new evangelist, the Rev. G. R. Stuart, of Chattanoga, who also agreed to take part. Thus it was, singularly enough also, that the camp meeting for 1890 displays as its most effective preachers four southern-born evangelists, all of them truly powerful in exhortation, and all of them notable for that peculiarly attractive drawl and patois that any northern man can at once distinguish as the southern accent. The terms "tote your load," "heap of "sins," "quit you now," have already become familiar to the very genteel little gamins of Round Lake; and Sam Jones's pet catchword, uttered more frequently than he is probably aware, "Now, lis'en!" has become the regular introduction to half the small boys' conversation.

Sam Small has been out of the public eye for so regular introduction to half the small boys' conversation.

Sam Small has been out of the public eye for so long a time that he is virtually a new acquaintance to the readers of The Tribune. It is fair to say that he has improved in many ways during his retirement. He is still young and has the same fine luxuriousness of thought. But he is more conservative, more refined, more careful. He has used no word of slang. His most florid imagery has been inside the lines of exuberance. He has been earnest, pathetic and convincing. He told one night the story of his own conversion by Sam Jones, of his previous life of drunkenness and sin (a story always badly told in the pulpit by the converted), yet it was so simple, so plainly a powerful recalling, so utterly void of the catchpenny or the harlequin order of such recallings, that it was clothed with pathos and effectiveness. He showed himself a scholar—not always the attributejof the exhorter—and this, too, in the midst of his most fervent exhortations. Mr. Small is now the president of Ogden University, in Utah, and he is engaged at present in a hot Methodist warfare against Mormonism.

Quite a surprise for the camp—meeters was the Rev. Mr. Grandison, of Noth Carolina. He is an ideal of that description of the colored man—"The description of his Maker carved in ebony." He is very black, a shiny black, with strong, manly features. His exhortations and prayers were of a fervid character, and yet it was plain the ferror was restrained, that it might not overflow the bounds of reason. Rev. Mr. Stuart, of Chattanoga, was also something of a surprise. He, too, displayed the southern element to repletion, but not always in its most attractive character. He was hardly original, and generally he was mild. Sam Jones himself capitally characterized his style by the remark: "Brother Stuart and I get along well enough together, but our practice is different. I give 'em calomel, and he gives 'em syrup."

tribution was being taken up, and in spite of the fact, often proved, that Round Lake congregations are very liberal. He harped on this string again and again in the succeeding meetings, and he even turned to his associate ministers on the platform, and playfuly charged them with "palming off coppers on God." "You old sister over there," he said, "you have got a quarter and a penny in your pocket, and you are going to give the penny to God and keep the quarter. What do you expect then but a penny's worth of religion." Upon the kindred subject of liberality of churches, however, Mr. Jones spoke much more broadly and effectively. He held that, were the churches liberal enough, they had the power to suppress crime in all its public forms, to control elections and legislation, and to make possible all the reforms that are now merely in the realm of dreams. In his sermon upon the love of God he was fervid and strong in his eloquence, and his peroration, unmoved by a touch of his rude barbarisms of expression, touched the heart of his hearers, and gave them a higher idea of the earnestness and ability of the preacher. He was broader also in his theology. He held that the crucifixion of Jesus was not a vicarious sacrifice to wash away the sins of man, but an exhibition of the love of God by which he aimed to reclaim men from their sins. As to the heridity of sin from the old Adam, he scouted it: "You hypocrital old brother over there, you say you sin because the old Adam is in you. I tell younow, listen! there are sins in this world that Adam never heard of. You put a copper in the box just now, and Adam never saw a copper. Ain't that so, Brother ——?" calling one of the ministers by name, and then immediately adding: "And now, Brother ——," calling one of the ministers by name, and then immediately adding: "And now, Brother ——," calling one of the ministers by name, and then immediately adding: "And now, Brother ——," calling one of the ministers by name, and then immediately adding: "And now, Brother ——," calling one o

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.

Quite a Lot of Important Business Transacted Yesterday at the Regular Monthly Meeting.

The board of county commissioners met yesterday morning.

There was a full meeting of the beard,

Chairman Hunnicut presiding.

A petition from the Atlanta Street Railway Company asked that the county commissioners allow them to extend their lines along Gordon street from West End to the entrance of Westview cemetery.

This petition was backed up by a long petition signed by a great many citizens of West End, and was granted.

Colonel J. P. Austin, representing the Fulton County Farmers' Alliance, appeared be-fore the board and stated that the alliance had raised $300 toward making a creditable exhibit at the Piedmont exposition.

He asked that the county come to the aid of the alliance, so as to make a creditable exhibit at the great fair. He cited instances where other counties in the state had come to the aid of the alliances in matters of this kind, and made a strong appeal

The matter was referred to the county attorney, Colonel Thomson, who said that no such donation could be legally made by the commissioners.

The matter, therefore, was passed over by the board, as the matter was entirely beyond its jurisdiction.

The Metropolitan Street Railway Company petitioned for permission to lay its tracks along the Flat Shoals road from the city limits to Martin's corners, in Reynoldstown, a distance of 150 yards, and thence directly on the county line on an unnamed road.

Also to lay its track on State street, beginning at the city limits and running thence to Emmett street, thence to Marietta street, and thence to the contemplated crossing under the Western and Atlantic and the Georgia Pacific roads, thence along Ashby street to the city

This was referred to the committee on roads and bridges with power to act, Mr. J. D. Collins, chairman.

SOME NEW ROADS. Right-of-way for a fifty-foot road through the lands of Mr. Plaster and others cutting off a large bend in the Peachtree road, was tendered to the commissioners. It was referred to the committee on roads and bridges, Mr. J. D. Collins, chair-

Messrs. Buchanan, Groghan and others from South Bend sent in a complaint that the Atlanta and Florida railroad had laid its tracks along a new public road in that district, and prayed for relief.

The matter was referred to the committee on roads and bridges, with instructions that the company be compelled to make the proper indemnity. THE PIEDMONT EXPOSITION.

A committee from the Piedmont Exposition pany appeared before the board, headed by Captain James R. Wylie, who was seconded by Major M. C. Kiser, Mr. H. H. Cab-aniss and others, asking that the roads be opened and that those already in existence be improved and put in good order in the neighborhood of the Piedmont park.

The committee set forth that the roads are in bad condition, and that it is necessary that several other suburban streets be opened so as to give easy access to the grounds.

After a patient hearing it was referred to the tee on public works with power to act, Dr. H. L. Wilson, chairman. A petition for a change in the road leading from the city to Hapeville, was referred to the district commissioners of that district.

THE DECATUR EXTENSION.

Mr. S. H. Phelan reported that he and others associated with him have expended over $4,000 in extending East Fair street into DeKalb county, having graded a thirty-foot road a distance of about five miles, a thirty-foot road a distance of about five miles, down to a 5 per cent grade.

He asked that the commissioners comply with this portion of the contract entered into between the commissioners and the citizens of DeKalb, at the June session. This agreement was that East Fair street should be opened up to the county line so soon as the DeKalb citizens should have expended $1,500 on their portion of the road. Mr. Phelan asked that the short strip between the DeKalb portion and the point where the Flat Shoals road crosses East Fair street, be opened at once, so as to open up street, be opened at once, so as to open up direct communication with the city over the

The matter was referred to the committee on

VARIOUS REPORTS.

The county physician reported ten sick inmates of the county jail, most of them chronic cases.

The report of County Treasurer C. M. Payne for the month of August, shows $2,818.21 in the treasury.

These, with other reports, were read and received.

The report of the committee that went out with County Surveyor Clayton to investigate the condition of the new iron bridge, being constructed by contract, over the Chattahoochee river, on Tuesday last, was read and received. It was very satisfactory, and the work on the bridge is progressing rapidly.

The pay roll of the county officials was passed up and ordered paid.

The pay roll of the county officials was passed up and ordered paid.

Plans for the building of a new jail were submitted by Architects Bruce & Morgan, and were filed for future reference.

It was found that the county lacked about $13,000 of having enough money on hand to pay current expenses, and the finance committee was instructed to borrow that much.

It was ordered, on the statement of Mr. Collins, that Judge Marshall J. Clarke had reported that the superior court room lacked a new matting on the floor and that the same be put down at once.

The board adjourned to meet again Wednesday next.

It was what has been termed a "red-hot," enthusiastic meeting, but the prevailing color was black.

The committee is composed of negro republicans by a marked majority, and M. H. Bentley, the Broad street barber, is chairman.

E. A. Donehoo. That's the sheriff's ticket that the present neumbents will have to down for re-election.

A mighty strong ticket it is. Jim Morrow is too well known to need an ntroduction in Fulton county. His long residence here, and his long connection with the Georgia railroad, have given him an ex-eeptionally wide acquaintance.

Mr. J. J. Barnes, the well-known Porsyth street merchant, will be another element of strength in the ticket.

Mr. M. N. Blount is one of the finest accountants in the state, and another popular

Mr. W. D. Green is a sterling young busiess man, well known in the city and county. Mr. E. A. Donehoo was strongly urged to enter the race for county commissioner, as the representative from the country, at the last election. He declined to do so, but his strength, which was plainly shown then, will figure largely in the sheriff's race.

"It is my intention, as well as the intention of the able gentleman whom I have associated with me in this race," said Captain Morrow last evening, "in the event the people of Fulton county see proper to honor us with votes sufficient to place us in charge of the sheriff's office, to run the office on strictly business principals. Now, as to myself, I don't think that I need any introduction to the people of Fulton county, either as to my business capacity or integrity. The same can be said of all the other gentlemen who are associated with me. We have no war to make on anyone who now holds the office, but as we are now in the field, as a matter of course our desire is to be elected, and ask our friends to stand by us in this race and give us a trial for one term. Should that prove unsatisfactory each and every one of us are willing to pledge ourselves never to ask a renewal."

Now the fight is on in earnest. THE STUDY OF PLANT LIFE. An Interesting Session of the Atlanta

Horticultural Society. The Atlanta Horticultural Society took up the study of plant life at their session yesterday morning. Professor J. S. Newman recommended to the society, as reference books, "How Crops Grow" and "How Crops Feed."

Colonel R. J. Redding recommended Gray's "How Plants Grow" and "How Plants Behave," and a small microscope or a set of glasses varying from one to three inches focal distance. The study of botany is extremely interesting and by no means difficult, and it should be taught in all our high-grade schools. Some of the class will soon want a more advanced textbook, and I would advise Gray's "School and Field Botany" and Chapman's

"Flora of the Southern States." Gustave Speth, horticulturalist of the experiment station, recommended begin-ning at the fundamental princi-ples of plant life and advancing gradually, as the rudiments are mastered.

Captain C. K. Maddox, the botanist, de livered an instructive lecture, illustrating it with flowers. The lecture was the first of the course, and was listened to with marked atten-tion, and the large assemblage rose to their feet in a unanimous yote of thanks.

At the next meeting each member will be prepared with notebook and pencil to take down the points of Captain Maddox's lecture. The study of plant life has also been taken up by the Edgewood alliance.

The committee on the death of Miss Poppie Burpitt submitted the following report:

"Death, with his relentless scythe, has en-"Death, with his relentless scythe, has entered into our midst and cut down one of our most active, efficient members, Miss Poppie Burpitt. We can see her now, as she entered our society hall, all aglow with enthusiasm, bringing her beautiful floral specimens, the product of her own culture and care. Her instructive paper on the culture of the call ally, read before our body, is yet fresh in our memories and will be cherished by us as a memorial suggestive of the beautiful and consoling idea that the writer is now herself an immortal lily blooming in God's eternal Eden.

"The circumstances of Miss Poppie Burpitt's death are peculiarly sad, herself and family being strangers in a strange land. The floral offerings on her grave had not lost their freshness and beauty ere the unsparing Reaper again enters her home and cuts down a sister, Miss Lillie, thus doubling the sorrow and desolation that already hung over the home. Miss Lillie, although not a member, was a visitor and sympathizer with our society and its work.

"We offer the following tribute to the memory of Miss Poppie and Miss Lillie Burpitt: Resolved 1, That our society has lost a valuable and progressive worker in the death of Miss Poppie Burpitt, and an esteemed friend and encourager in the death of Miss Lillie Burpitt.

2. That we horeby extend to our bereaved brother, Mr. James Burpitt, their father, together with his family, our deepest sympathy in this supremely sad affliction. May God, in His infinite mercy, shower the dews of His love and comfort over their desolated, broken hearts.

ROADS AND REVENUES. THE SHERIFF'S TICKET. HOW'S THE WEATHER?

A TALK WITH SERGEANT BYBAM, THE WEATHER MAN.

He Says It Will be Showery Today, and the Chances Are Good for an Early Fall-Some Figures.

The weather has been bothering many peo ple lately by its sudden and uncertain changes. The cool breeze that has been blowing from the east has seemed more like the breath of winter than the sighing southerly breeze of summer, and the weather man has been con-tinually called upon to give an account of the

Sergeant Byram, who is the superintendent of the signal service of the United States in Atlanta, talks interestingly about the weather

He keeps posted with its most sudden changes, and is up in all of its little, fickle "There is no counting on the weather," he said yesterday, "when the wind is blowing from the east. The barometer is liable to be jumping up and down continually, and the sun may shine one hour and the earth be drenched with showers the next.

"Especially is this true just at this period of the year. It is quite likely that the rains will continue for the next twenty-four hours, as the wind is still from the south and east, alternately, and so long as this is the case, the sun can't hope to shine long at a time."

"What kind of weather will September

HE IS NO PROPHET. "I cannot foretell, and am not allowed to talk at random. According to Hicks the weather will be as changeable as the blushing little school girl flirt of sixteen summers. But, then, I don't go much on Hicks.

"He said it would rain from the 22d of August to the 25th and, as a matter of fact, it only rained one day out of that period of time. Again he said the first part of the month would be fair, when, on the contrary, it was as rainy as wet weather could have it.

"I can only predict for one day ahead, and from presonal indications it will rain, or at least be showery. It can't be clear but a few hours tomorrow anyhow." "Do you think we will have an early fall?"
"Again, you will excuse me for hesitating to guess, for it would be nothing else than a guess, for it would be nothing else than a guess.

"I may tell you this, however, that we are 444 degrees in excess of heat for the year, and if all things equalize as is a basis in weather calculations, it is likely that we will have quite an early fall.

"When I say we are 444 degrees in excess of heat, I mean that we are that many degrees ahead of the annual average of heat for the past twenty years. According to this same basis we are here in Atlanta 12.25 inches behind in the average rainfall.

"Now then, in view of these figures it might be a reasonable calculation to say that there will be some early cold weather, but I cannot vouch for it. Ask me something easier."

THE COTTON MARKET EVERYWHERE FEELS STEENSTRAND'S FALL.

An Atlanta Cotton Man Talks About the Decline—How the Anglo-Dutch Bull Kept the Price Up Six Months.

Steenstrand's failure is viewed with much nterest by cotton men everywhere. He has for some time been looked upon as a hig bull in the market, but not until recently did the cotton world feel the effect of his plans and schemes so forcibly.

But the brokers of Liverpool, who were do ing business with the cotton king, soon caught on to his little game and called a halt in his reckless career.

The market of the whole world feels the effect of his fall. The cotton men of Atlanta were not much surprised at the crisis which resulted so disas-riously for Steenstrand. They had been kept posted by their corres-pondents in Liverpool, and other points across the waters.

"We had a telegram a week ago," said one of Atlanta's cotton men yesterday, "stating that Steenstrand was being placed in embarrassing straits.

"You see, all the cotton business in Liverpool is done by brokers. These fellows began to regard Steenstrand as an Anglo-Dutch bull some time ago, and they gradually drew down upon him until they sold him out entirely, he paying 66 cents on the dollar. WHY COTTON WENT UP.

"There is no question of a doubt but that the rise and continued elevation of cotton for the past six monthis has been due to this fellow.

"Early in the spring cotton went up and kept going up until it reached 11g cents. Every-body wondered what was the matter. The crop had been greater than ever before, and still the price went up.

"It is all clear now. Steenstrand did it. He caused many of our factories in America to close up. not being able to run while cotton was so high. Now the reaction has set in."

"How much has cotton dropped 2"

"Cotton is quoted now for Atlanta at 9g when a short time back it was ranging from 11½ to 11g cents—quite a considerable, but still a gradual fall.

"The cotton market of the whole world will feel the effects of Steenstrands' fall." rise and continued elevation of cotton for the Smith's Tonic Syrup.

This famous remedy was discovered by the eminent Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky. It is intended as a scientific substitute for quinine, and is rapidly superseding the use of this drug. For any ailment that may indicate a need of quinine, Smith's Tonic Syrup may be prescribed in preference and with more satisfactory results, as it never leaves any unpleasant after-effects, such as fullness of the head, headache, buzzing in the ears, deafness, uneasy or aching sensations, nausea, convulsions, paralysis, etc. It has all the good medicinal qualities of quinine and is free from its many evil tendencies. As a tonic, antiperiodic and antipyretic, it is unexcelled by any drug known to medical science. In cases of malaria, colds, influenza, inordinate temperature of the body, feverish symytoms, chills and fever, etc., no other remedy can be used with such certainty of beneficial effects. It is a certain antidote for the evil influences of malaria and climatic changes. This famous remedy was discovered by the Nearly time for you to hustle into a heavier coat. When the time is perfectly ripe you'll not make a wry over the cost if the merits of our styles be fairly considered. Many of our products are strictly original. As progressive manufacturers it is our glory that we create a class of clothing which for elegance and general reliability is unknown beyond our doors. This week we open up a magnificent variety for showing and for selling. Two thousand of the handsomest Fall Suits you ever cast your eyes on-tony, swell, inexpensive and every other beauty enhanced by scientific workmanship. Novices don't sew for us--none but adepts employed. Think of that when a buying impulse seizes you. Price? Well, you'll have to come inside and not hurry out if you wish to catch a proper idea of their cheapness.

Boys' Clothing for the Fall and Winter of 1890. Every mother in Atlanta should see the stock. The skill of our factories has been devoted to bringing out fresh things for the retail trade. Boys' Clothing claims first call because the school days are here. We realized the present season would outdo all others in the largeness of sales, and the manufacturing department was gauged accordingly.

There's a gem for every growth of boy from the littlest to the biggest; from earliest knee-breeches to young manhood. Plaids, mostly. Hundreds here now. Others coming--but plenty arrived to see how alert we are.

You know this is the principal point in the South for school suits. From wide, bold plaids to neat, quiet checks, and in each case you can depend upon it being best. They give fine service to the most coltish boy.

WASHINGTON, September 3.-In the house, during the absence of Speaker Reed, on motion of Mr. Cannon, of Illinois, Mr. Burrows, of Michigan, was elected speaker pro tem., and took the chair amid applause from both sides of the house.

On motion of Mr. Blount, of Georgia, a bill was passed authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Savannah river by the Middle Georgia and Atlantic Railroad Com-

Mr. Mansur, of Missouri, reported a resolution authorizing the subcommittee of the committee on territories to proceed to Arizona and New Mexico to inquire into the social, educational, financial and moral conditions existing in those territories, and to report whether they are prepared for stateh Also to visit Utah and inquire into the extent of celestial marriages in that territory.

Mr. Buchanan, of New Jersey, objected to its

THE CLAYTON-BRECKINRIDGE CASE. The house then proceeded to the further consideration of the Clayton-Breckinridge

Mr. Berger, of New Jersey, resumed his argument in favor of the unseating of Mr. Breckinridge. After depicting the assassination of Clayton, he criticised Mr. Breckin-ridge for not resigning his seat and thereby disowning the advantage he had gained from the murder. He had not done so, but had stood by those who had stood by him at the death. Was Mr. Breckin-ridge a party to the conspiracy which almost ended in a tragedy? He trusted not. He was almost ready to say that he believed not. He would feel very sad to make any statement on this floor that would be as terrible as that. But it had been in Mr. Breck-inridge's power to save the life of Clayton. Had he done it? It was said he had. He (Mr. Bergen) trusted that he had, but the gentleman avoided saying.

MR. CRISP CRITICISES THE MAJORITY. Mr. Crisp, of Georgia, criticised the report of the subcommittee which visited Arkansas, charging the majority of that subcommittee with omitting avidence from the record and with the refusal to take testimony for the con testant. To his mind the majority report was the members of that subcommittee had started upon their investigation determined to find to sustain their pre-ideas as to what the condition was in the the second district of Arkansas. The whole of the majority report was founded upon "suspicion" and not upon Arkansas. The whole of the majority report was founded upon "suspicion" and not upon "proof."

Containing his criticism of the report, he quoted as the "milk in the coccanut," the following extract:

The necessity for the enactment of some laws which will prevent ballot box stealing and murder from conferring a prima facie title to a seat in congress, is evident from the result in this contest. Had such laws been in force as would have prevented the contestee from taking his seat with such title, no one would have attempted to confersuch a title by stealing a ballot box.

There had been one ballot box stolen; but giving to Mr. Clayton every vote contained therein, there would have been no change in the prima facie case. The certificate had been given to Mr. Breckinridge long before the sad assassination of Mr. Clayton. Whether Mr. Clayton were dead or alive, would not have interfered with the organization of the house. The certificate had been issued by lawful authorities before the death of Mr. Clayton, and if that gentleman had lived he would have been here simply as a contestant. After arguing the case, Mr. Crisp gave notice that he would, at the proper time, move to recommit the pending resolutions, with instructions to the committee on elections to ascertain whether Breckinridge or Clayton received a majority of the votes cast at the election.

Messrs. Lacey, of Iowa, and Kelley, of Kandersen.

Messrs. Lacey, of Iowa, and Kelley, of Kan-sas, argued in favor of the majority report, and Mr. Outhwaite in support of the right of the sitting member to his seat. KENNEDY ATTACKS THE SENATE.

Then came the sensation of the day. Mr Kennedy, of Ohio, drew from the details of the Clayton-Breckinridge case the conclusion that a federal election law should be enacted. He made a fiery attack upon the senators who have been opposed to the Lodge bill. For himself, confident in the doctrines of the republican party, fully committed to the princi-ples of that party, he must forever dissent from the cowardly surrender which hauls down the flag and strikes the colors of the republican fing and strikes the colors of the republican party to a defeated foe.

Speaking for myself I shall nail the banner of the republican party at the mast head, with the doctrine which has become inseparable from the history of its existence, and which demands the protection of the humblest citizen in the right to an honest ballot and the protection of life and property, and stand ready to defend that doctrine to the last. That the election bill has been killed by republicans, or pretended republicans, is true. Without fair treatment, the bill which the house of representatives said imperatively was demanded for the preservation of its own honor and for the safety and stability of its honor and for the protection of the whole country against outrage, intimidation and violence, is deliberately put aside without a hearing and without the opportunity of consideration. When before in all the past history of legislation has one house of congress deliberately put upon the other the mark of derision and contempt?

The consideration of this measure was de-The consideration of this measure was demanded by every sense of decency and honor and it was demanded by the house of representatives that its floor might be purged of those who are enabled to enter by reason of violence and murder. The senate of the United States will learn that there is a bar of public opinion and that at that bar it is now being tried.

HOW THE MIGHTY HAVE FALLEN To have been a senator in the days of Web-ster and Clay and Calhoun was to have been a part of a body that won and held the admira tion of the people, north and south. To have tion of the people, north and south. To have been a senator in the days of Wade and Fessenden and Crittenden was to have been associated with men whose sense of honor would have scorned the purchase of a seat, and would have denied the companionship to one whose name was tarnished by even the suspicion of infamy or corruption. If the Roman toga has been bedragged in the filth and mire of centuries, surely the cleak of senatorial courtesy has been used to hide infamy and corruption which has dishenored and disgraced a body which was once the proudest in the land.

SENATORIAL COURTESY RIDICULED. SENATORIAL COURTESY RIDICULED.
The cloak of "senatorial courtesy" has become a "stench in the nostrils" and byword in the mouths of all honest citizens of the land. It makes a cloak behind which ignorant and arrogant wealth can purchase its way to power, and then hide its cowardly head behind the shameless protection of "senatorial silence."

silence."

It means a cloak which shall cover up from It means a cloak which shall cover up from the public gaze of an outraged people infamies which demand investigation, and which merit the punishment of broken laws and violated statutes. It means a cloak behind which petty party bickers may barter away the party's principles and play demogogue in the face of the people. It means a cloak behind which pretended fairness hides its dishonest head, while in secret it is trading and trafficking in the rights and liberties of the people. It means a cloak under which not only a timid but cowardly politician can cover up his tracks and be either foul or fair, as necessity demands. The hour for senatorial the punishment of broken laws and violated statutes. It means a cloak behind which petty party bickers may batter away the party's principles and play demogogue in the face of the people. It means a cloak behind which pettyded fairness hides its dishonest head, while in secret it is trading and trafficking in the rights and liberties of the people. It means a cloak under which not only a timid but cowardly politician can cover up his tracks and be either foul or fair, as necessity demands. The hour for senatorial courtesy has passed. The team of senatorial courtesy has passed. The team of senatorial progress must give way to the motor of a more enlightened and progressive and determined age. Let the old and threadbure cloak of senatorial courtesy be hung up with the sickle and fiail of bygone days.

MATT QUAY ROUGHLY-HANDLED.
Referring to the betrayal of Christ by Judas, as necessity demands. The hour for senatorial courtesy has passed. The team of senatorial progress must give way to the motor of a more enlightened and progressive and determined age. Let the old and threadbure cloak of senatorial courtesy be hung up with the sickle and flail of bygone days.

Mr. Kennedy said: "It was meet and fitting that Judas should be paid thirty marks of silver. It was still a part of the eternal fitness of things that having been guilty of the basest crime of all centuries, he should go out and hang himself. History is repeating itself. The great party of the republic having lived for thirty five years have even yet assisted in The great party of the republic having lived for thirty-five years, has never yet assisted in riveting the shackles upon a human being, and now when it was to be expected that it would redeem its pledges and be faithful to its history, it is about to prove false, and the oft repeated promises are not to be redeemed. It comes victorious from every field, and if it fails now it finds in its own party those who are faithless to the trust reposed in them.

"If it is to be crucified, it is only because its chosen leaders have bartered away its principles for the tricks and petty schemes of politicians. The Judas Iscariot of 2,000 years ago is to find a counterpart in the Judas Iscariot of today.

ADVISES QUAY TO FOLLOW JUDAS.

"Judas who took thirty pieces of silver and went and hanged himself, has left an example for the Matt Quays that is well worthy of their imitation. Some time since I stood up in my place on this floor and denounced a senator from my native state because, when charged with corruption and branded with infamy, he did not rise in his seat and demand an investi-gation and inquiry that should establish the purity of his actions and his personal honor. purity of his actions and his personal honor.

"One other, occupying a high place in the councils of the party to which I belong, has suffered himself month in and month out to be charged with crimes and misdemeanors for which, if guilty, he should have been condemned under the laws of his state, and have had meted out to him the fullest measure of its punishment. This man is a republican! Shall I now remain silent? Is it just and honest to remain in my seat silent because one who is accused of crimes and refuses to seek for vindication is a republican, and that republican the recognized leader of my party. Neither decency nor honor would permit me to do so.

QUAY HAS REMAINED SILENT. "I do not know whether the charges made against the chairman of the national repubican committee are true or false, but I do know that they have been made by journals of character and standing, again and again, and I do know that in the face of these charges Matt Quay has remained silent and has neither sought nor attempted to seek an opportunity to vindicate himself of them. I do know that as a great republican leader, he owed it to the great party at whose head he was, either to brand them as infamies or to prove their falsity, or he owed it to that party to stand aside from its leadership. He has not done either, and for this I denounce him. The republican party cannot afford to follow the lead of a branded criminal. He has failed to justify himself, and though opportunity and ample time have been given him, he remains silent. His silence under such circumstances is a confession of guilt. An honorable man does not dally when his honor is assailed. He has delayed too long to justify belief in his innocence, and he stands a convicted criminal before the bar of public opinion.

SHOULD BE DRIVEN FROM THE PARTY. Matt Quay has remained silent and has neither

SHOULD BE DRIVEN FROM THE PARTY "Under such circumstances, he should be driven from the head of the party, whose very life his presence imperils. The republican party has done enough for its pretended leader —let him be relegated to the rear. It is n longer a question of his vindication; it is now a question of the life of the party itself."

The Breckinridge case then went over, and the house adjourned.

THE MURDER OF BARRUNDIA.

Senator Call Introduces a Resolution in Regard to It-The Tariff Discussion Washington, September 3.—Mr. Call offered a resolution in the senate, which was referred to the committee on foreign relations, declaring that the murder of General Bar rundia, on the steamer Acapulco, by the authorities of Guatemala while under the protection of the flag of the United States, was an insult to the people of the United States, and demanded prompt action by the government of the United States for redress of that injury and for security against a recurrence of such cases.

TAKING UP THE TARIFF. The tariff bill was then taken up, the sugar chedule being under consideration.

Mr. Edmunds addressed the senate. He referred to the assertion in Mr. Vance's speech last evening that the farmer bore all the burdens of custom duties, while he had no benefit from them.

The senator had named a variety of articles that were on the free list, but he had not named the article of mica, found in North Carolina, on which there is a duty.

Mr. Vance—There is no duty on r

He forgot the lumber interest of North Carolina. put his eyes to the importance of pitch and tar ond turpentine that have given such a whole-some and odorous tone to the people of that state.

Vance—They are put on the free list, also, and the duty on rice is reduced.

Edmunds—Well, let us unite to put them where they belong. The fact is that the farmer of North Carolina is, in respect to every material interest, precisely in the condition of the farmer of Vermont and if the tariff is bad for the farmer of Vermont.

for the farmer of North Carolina it is bad for the farmer of Vermont. Coming to the question of reciprocity, Mr. Edmunds recalled the history and practical operation (injurious to the United States) of the Canadian reciprocity treaty of 1854.

MR. MORGAN'S RECIPROCITY AMENDMENT. Mr. Morgan addressed the senate in suppor of the amendment heretofore proposed by him as a substitute for Mr. Aldrich's reciprocity amendment. It provides for a duty of 3 per cent ad valorem on corn, wheat, rye, barley, oats, hay, straw, potatoes, cotton, live domestic animals and on asses, mules and horses, and that when any of such articles are exported [a premium of 3 per cent shall be paid on their value to the owner. He opposed the reciprocity amendments and said that the effect of them would be a surrender to Great Britain because they would apply it to sugar, molases, hides and coffee, all of which were largely produced in British colonies.

Mr. Voorhees addressed the senate. He compared the senator who supported the pending bill, but who withdrew from the senator who have when its injusties were being ate chamber when its iniquities were being ate chamber when its iniquities were being exposed, to a rapacious crow who stole his corn, but got away without listening to the argument of the farmer's shotgun. The bill, he said, was full of nuggets of gold for the manufacturers, but was as barren of fruit for the poor man as the tree that was cursed by the Savior. Most of Mr. Voorhees's speech was devoted to a vivid and picturesque denunciation of the McKinley bill as the anti-Christ of all preceding legislation.

MR. EVARTS ON DEMOCRATIC ORATORY. Mr. Evarts was the next speaker. staple of democratic oratory, he said, was that he supporters of protection of American in dustry were robbers, and were hiding and skulking behind evasion, prevarication and fraud—an oratory which was perhaps justified by some round statement on the republican side that the democratic senators were all mountebanks on the subject of free trade, and were not entitled to any cradit for the prince. The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK. September 3.—Business created by the efforts of the bears to further depress Rock Island and sugar refineries with some trading in Atchison and St. Paul, comprised about all there was of the stock market today. The general list, while very dul, presented a firm front, especially in the afternoon, and fluctuations were even smaller than the previous few days showed. There were stories in circulation about the probable passing of the next dividend on Rock Island, and that ng of the next dividend on Rock Island, and that ing of the next dividend on Rock Island, and that traders had points to sell stock for 75, but after a further decline of a larger fraction, the stock rallied nearly 2 per cent, which would give the impression that the early rumors were made for the purpose of covering shorts upon. The reaction was accompanied by a Chicago special that Atchison would divert freight to Rock Island and so save the account of the purpose of the reaction of the purpose. the association from dissolution. Movements in were on a smaller scale than usual of late, and although it pursued the same course as Rock Island, it occupied a much less important posi-tion in the market. The heaviness of yesterday reappeared at the opening this morning, which was in close sympathy with lower London figures, and first prices showed losses from last night's finals of from ½ to ½ per cent generally. Outside of the two stocks mentioned Atchison and St. Paul, further losses were entirely insignificant. Later there was a rally which brought prices up to small fractions better than first prices. Traders again took the short side in the afternoon, howagain took the short side in the atternood, how-ever, and a vigorous raid upon Chicago, Burling-ton and Quincy rattled that stock off 1½ per cent in a very short time. The attack ceased as sud-denly as it began, and the market closed fairly steady at about opening figures for most of the list. Final changes, even for Rock Island and sugar, are slight, while the only important one is a loss of 1% in Burlington and Quincy. Total sales of listed stocks 108,000 shares.

NEW YORK, September 3—[Special]—Spinners appeared in the market after an absence of several weeks, taking 12,000 bales and creating a steadier feeling in the arrival market. Our cables advise us that much cotton has passed into stronger hands, and any favorable advices from this side would meet with quick response from the manu-facturing interests of Great Britain, who have sold their production of yarns and goods well ahead. America their production of yarns and goods well ahead. America, however, is disposed to part with her receipts at constantly declining prices, the break in the southern markets late this afternoon causing cotton to be offered at prices which may permit of delivery upon contracts. The close of the market was easy, all the poor accounts of the crop being lost sight of in the general desire to anticipate a further decline in the southern markets.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, September 3—Wheat—A good specu-lative business was transacted, but the feeling was weak, and contrary to general expectations yesterweak, and contrary to general expectations yester-day, operators thought the market was shaping itself for an advance, and indications this morn-ing pointed strongly that way, but when higher prices were reached a sharp decline followed, and the advance was lost. The decline proved a decided surprise in the face of the news received, which was decidedly bullish. The market opened 1/2 the higher than yesterday's closing, and prices were further advanced 1/2c, then selling orders because came more numerous, and, with some fluctuations, declined  $21/\sqrt{3}$ %c from prices, reacted, and the closing was about  $13/\sqrt{6}$  lower than yesterday. Corn-There was a fair business within moderate limits, the market ruling weaker early and steadier later in the session. At the opening there were free offerings by parties who had purchased yesterday on the cold weather scare, and as the de-mand was light, a decline followed. The first trades in the speculative market were at 3.20 % decline, after which prices advanced % 0.3%, reacted 34.00% and closed with a loss of 36.00%. Cash corn was in fair demand with moderate offerings, and prices ruled better than yesterday and closed steady. closed steady.

OFFICE OF FULTON COUNTY COMMISSION.—
ERS of Roads and Revenues, August 27, 1890.—
A petition having been filed in this office praying for the opening of a public road, beginning at the termination of the proposed change of Marietta road as petitioned for by Governor Brown, and continued on to Nettle's lane, opposite the factory of E. Van Winkle & Co., and the road commissioners to whom the same was referred, having reported, recommending the opening of the same. This is, therefore, to notify all persons concerned that, on the first Wednesday in October, 1890, said new road will be finally granted, if if no good cause to the contrary be shown.
